Two Battered German Armies Reeling North From Rome Under Annihilating 2-Ply Blows

Germans Report Invasion Begun, Le Havre Shelled

LONDON, Tuesday, June 6—(AP)—The German news agency Transocean said today in a broadcast that the Allied invasion had begun.

There was no Allied confirmation.

The German broadcast could be one which Allied leaders have expected would be made with the purpose of upsetting patriot plans inside the conquered countries.

The Associated Press recorded the broadcast, which said the invasion had begun from the west and that the French port of Le Havre was being shelled.

Le Havre lies 100 miles from the English port of Portsmouth, and is 80 miles south of the English coastal town of New Haven.

German naval forces off the coast are engaged in a battle with enemy landing craft, the broadcast said.

The broadcast was recorded shortly after 6:30 a. m. (11:30 p. m. Atlanta war time).

The German agency said the Allied "invasion operations" began with the landing of air-borne troops in the area of the mouth of the Seine river.

COULD BE FEINT

The Seine river empties into the Atlantic at Le Havre after winding northwestward through France from the capital at Paris.

The reported landings, if true, could be an Allied feint of which Prime Minister Churchill has warned the Allied world to expect in advance of the main Allied blows.

The Germans have been predicting that the Allies would strike as soon as the Allied campaign in Italy showed good progress—as it has done with the capture of Rome.

The Allies have been battering the French channel coast, of which Le Havre is a part, for months now as a prelude to invasion.

The reported blow against the main Axis fortified western wall is a little more than four years after the British retreat from Dunkerque.

GARRISONS BRISTLE

Whether deception or not, the reported landing again set in motion Germany's bristling defense garrisons.

Le Havre is one of the most important ports in France. It has great dock areas which would be suitable for the Allied invasion, once they were seized.

High chalk cliffs lie north of the town.

This is the "year of decision" which General Eisenhower, Allied supreme invasion commander, has set for the defeat of Germany.

With Allied armies rolling forward above Rome in Italy, and the Red army massed with its might on the plains of Poland, the Germans have been expecting an imminent invasion by upwards of 500,000 Allied troops.

These troops have been poised for months in England for just such a blow.

Insurance Put Under U.S. Law; Chaos Predicted

The decision of the United States supreme court that the business of fire insurance is interstate commerce and subject to the Sherman antitrust act may lead to "great confusion" in regulation of the business, and probably will result in a speedup of congressional efforts to place insurance definitely outside the Sherman act.

The decision, handed down yesterday, shattered a 75-year-old precedent of the court, which until now has held that insurance is not subject to federal control, since it is not interstate commerce.

Technically, the decision sustained an indictment in federal court here of 196 stock fire insurance companies and 27 individuals connected with the Southeastern Underwriters' Association. The indictment charged violation of the Sherman act in the setting of insurance rates. Judge E. Marvin Underwood sustained a demurrer filed by the insurance companies, ruling that for 75 years the supreme court had held insurance not interstate commerce. The government appealed his decision and obtained reversal of the precedent.

UNDER WAGNER ACT

Insurance now is regulated by the individual states, and 35 states joined with the defendants in the case to maintain the states' right of regulation. The federal government has no regulatory setup for the insurance business, and in the demurrer the defendants argued that great confusion would result from asserting federal regulatory rights without a means of regulating. The states cannot regulate interstate commerce.

The decision also brought insurance companies under the Wagner labor act.

Legislation is pending in both houses of congress specifically to exempt the insurance business from the antitrust laws, and supporters said they would press for quick action. Representative Walter, Democrat, Pennsylvania, author of a measure which has been approved by the House Judiciary Committee, declared legislation is "needed immediately to prevent chaos."

Representative Hancock, Republican, New York, author o fa similar bill, said the federal government has no organization to take over supervision of insurance. The pending legislation would leave such supervision to the states.

SUMNERS DIFFERS

Chairman Sumners, Democrat, Texas, of the House Judiciary Committee, said "I don't agree with the supreme court majority opinion."

However, Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, who has long fought the exemption legislation, predicted it would die in senate committee. He said the court's decision now requires the fire insurance companies to cooperate with congress and the states "in revising the insurance system so as to provide equitable treatment for little business as well as big business.

With the exception of Justice Roberts, who took no part in the decisions, the court was unanimous in its belief that insurance is interstate commerce and that the Wagner act applies.

But the court split, four to three, on the question whether insurance is subject to the antitrust laws. The dissenters, Chief Justice Stone and Justices Frankfurter and

Allies Prove Goering Received Abbey Loot

ALLIED HEADSQUARTER IN NAPLES, June 5.—(AP)—The theft of a costly altar statue from the Benedictine abbey at Cassino for Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering has been proven by an order of the day isued on May 28 by Lieutenant General Richard Heidrich, commander of the German first parachute division, an official Allied source said today.

The order said: "I have sent a deputation to the Reichsmarshal . . . The deputation took with them as a present from the division to the reichsmarshal a costl yaltar statue taken from the Cassino abbey by one battalion of the third parachute regiment. The reichsmarshal received our delegation in Berlin on May 25. He evinced great pleasure at the gift of the first parachute division."

The Allied source said that while it was long known that Goering's art collection has been enriched by loot from conquered lands this is the "first case on which we have evidence of his looting objects from a sacred building."

Man Found in Car Critically Stabbed

A man identified as Henry Hartman is in Grady hospital in a critical condition as a result of stab wounds inflicted by an unidentified assailant. Police found Hartman in an automobile at Marietta and Longley streets.

R. E. Carroll, hospital patrolman, said that Hartman told him that after taking a woman to her home in the vicinity of Marietta and Longley streets, the assailant climbed into his car and slashed him with a knife.

Rome (Ga.) Mail Commemorates Fall of Rome, Italy

ROME, Ga., June 5.—(AP)—Eighteen covers were mailed from Rome, Ga., yesterday afternoon by Postmaster W. E. Wimberley to stamp collectors who wanted the date of the fall of Rome, Italy, on their letters.

Suspect Sheds Handcuffs; They 'Pinched'

A shrewd police character with remarkable ability at slipping out of handcuffs and eluding the FBI as well as authorities of several states, met his match when he ran up against former Chief Jailer A. B. (Bud) Foster, candidate for sheriff of Fulton county.

While driving along Spring street in the downtown section yesterday, Foster heard an Army sergeant on the sidewalk yell, "Catch that man!" He stopped his car, jumped out and grabbed the man pointed to by the sergeant.

When the man was turned over to the police he was identified as Robert Womeldorf, 19, of Columbus, Ohio, alias John T. LaPorte, alias Sergeant Derrell G. Williams. His record showed arrests on charges of being a shoplifter, hotel thief and confidence man, and revealed that he is wanted in several other cities. Womeldorf, who admits deserting the Army in October, 1943, is also wanted by the FBI for an alleged violation of the Mann act. He is charged with bringing two girls from Chattanooga to Atlanta.

Womeldorf has been identified by two girls who allege that he robbed them several nights ago, and also by the sergeant who accused Womeldorf of robbing him recently in a local hotel room.

Womeldorf, whose arrest, according to Detective Superintendent J. A. McKibben, will probably clear up several other local crimes, was locked, handcuffed, in a room at police headquarters. But he had one more trick up his sleeve, for when Detectives M. V. Moss and H. D. Henshaw unlocked the door and looked in, Womeldorf, in the space of a few minutes, had slipped out of his handcuffs. He handed them to the detectives with the complaint that they pinched.

'Costly' Victory Path After Rome, Says FDR

German Defeat Ahead; 'One Up and Two to Go'

WASHINGTON, June 5—(AP)—Hailing the capture of Rome with the jubilant phrase "One up and two to go," President Roosevelt declared tonight that the aim now is to drive Germany "to the point where she will be unable to recommence world conquest a generation hence."

Mr. Roosevelt, in a nation-wide broadcast, cautioned that this struggle with the Nazis would be tough and costly and that the day of Germany's surrender "lies some distance ahead."

Whether his reaffirmation that the fight would be pressed until Germany surrenders was a reply to the recent speech of Pope Pius XII was not stated. The Pope asserted last week that the idea that the war must end either in complete victory or complete destruction is a stimulant toward prolonging the conflict and expressed hope for an early peace.

Speaking of Rome as the great symbol of Christianity, the President declared "it will be a source of deep satisfaction that the freedom of the Pope and of Vatican City is assured by the armies of the United Nations."

But he declared that no thanks are due Hitler and his generals "if Rome was spared the devastation which the Germans wreaked on Naples and other Italian cities."

"The Allied generals maneuvered so skillfully," he said, "that the Nazis could only have stayed long enough to damage Rome at the risk of losing their armies."

"Our victory," Mr. Roosevelt asserted, "comes at an excellent time, while our Allied forces are poised for another strike at western Europe—and while armies of other Nazi soldiers nervously await our assault. And our gallant Russian allies continue to make their power felt more and more."

The President extended to Italy the invitation to help in establishing a lasting peace and said, "all the other nations opposed to Fascism and Nazism should help give Italy a chance.

"The Germans, after years of domination in Rome, left the people in the Eternal City on the verge of starvation. We and the British will do everything we can to bring them relief. . . . We have already begun to save the lives of the men, women and children of Rome."

The Italian people "are capable of self-government," Mr. Roosevelt continued. "We do not lose sight of their virtues as a peace loving nation."

Speaking of the military operations still to come in Europe, the President said:

"We shall have to push through a long period of greater effort and fiercer fighting before we get into Germany itself. The Germans

AP Photo Stirs Hope 3 Georgia Fliers Still Live

A photograph showing eight American airmen marching slowly on their way to a German prison camp has brought bright new hope to at least three Georgia homes.

Mothers of two boys reported missing in raids over Germany, and the wife of a third came to The Constitution yesterday to look at the original Associated Press wirephoto which was reproduced in Saturday's paper—hoping against hope for additional information that would convince them the lads pictured there, apparently well, were their boys.

Mrs. H. L. Paris, of 658 Pine street, Hapeville, positively identified one of the pictured airmen as her son, Lieutenant Harold Melford Paris, 22, pilot on a B-17, reported missing in action since April 29.

"I've been worried since the War Department sent me that telegram," Mrs. Paris said. "But this picture—when I saw it in the paper I knew right away it was Mel and that he was still living! You can't imagine what a wonderful feeling it is!"

Mrs. D. M. Lenkeit, of 315 East Harvard, College Park, identified another of the group as her husband, Lieutenant Lenkeit, reported missing over Berlin since May 8.

Mrs. R. C. Andrews, of 1064 Hill street, S. E., picked another of the group she felt might be her son but after a closer examination of the photo she was still in doubt. Mrs. Andrews' son, Staff Sergeant Ralph C. Andrews Jr., has also been missing since the April 29 raid over Berlin.

The photo, rather blurred and indistinct in some details, was obtained from German sources, serviced by the Swedish news agency, Pressens Bild, and released in this country by the Associated Press.

U. S. Air and Undersea Craft Sink 20 More Japanese Ships

By The Associated Press

Twenty more ships have been blown out of Japan's vanishing merchant and fighting fleets by American torpedoes and bombs.

Night flying Liberators sank a destroyer and damaged two other ships Saturday night in the Halmahera sea, on General MacArthur's path from New Guinea to the Philippines, Southwest Pacific headquarters announced. Two direct hits left another destroyer dead in the water and probably sinking off Manokwari in western Dutch New Guinea where a small freighter was sunk.

Destruction of 16 more ships by submarines and two by Central Pacific bombers were announced by the Navy yesterday.

Eighteen Japanese planes were shot down in air battles Saturday—seven over Truk in the central Carolines where one Liberator was lost, and 11 over Biak island in the Schouten group off the Dutch New Guinea north coast.

On the major warfront in Asia six Japanese columns were closing in on Changsha, pivotal point on the Hankow-Canton railway bisecting southeastern China.

"The fate of the nation depends upon the outcome of the present battle," said General Hsueh Yueh, governor of Hunan, who has three times thrown the invaders back from Changsha.

More than 100 miles northwest of Changsha, on the far side of Lake Tungting, the Chinese recaptured Kungan and reported a number of local successes. These engagements have no direct bearing on the impending fight for Changsha.

Tokyo radio today, as reported from London, asserted Japan "is ready to launch the most formidable offensive ever against the Allies—an offensive which will cut China in two and foil American strategy."

"The moment to strike has come," declared the broadcast.

Air-borne Chindits are continuing their attacks from the south of the besieged Japanese north Burma base of Myitkyina, and within the city itself Chinese and American forces have gained more than 200 yards in their slugging drive through the southeast portion, Allied headquarters announced today.

Italian Monarch Yields To Son To Keep His Vow; Bombers Strafe Roads

Triumphant troops of the Allied Fifth Army smashed relentlessly on beyond Rome yesterday apparently bent upon answering Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's plea to completely wipe out German defenders of Italy as a project even more to be desired than Sunday's seizure of Rome. Relentless waves of Allied fighter-bombers curtained the northward push with annihilating blasts that clogged the highways north of the Eternal City with flaming German motor transport. Vichy said the Tiber was clear of Nazis.

Meanwhile, King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy, true to his April pledge to quit when the Allies took Rome, relimquished his powers to his son, Crown Prince Umberto, just 25 days after the new Allied offensive began below Cassino and at the bridgehead. Emanuele remains a King but without power.

Burning Vehicles Jam Nazi Escape

ROME, June 5.—(AP)—Allied armor and motorized infantry roared through the Eternal City today—not pausing to sight-see—crossed the Tiber, and proceeded with the grim task of destroying two battered German armies fleeing to the north.

Flashing forces of Allied fighter-bombers spearheaded the pursuit, jamming the escape highways northward with burning enemy transport and littering the fields with dead and wounded Nazis.

The enemy was tired, disorganized and bewildered by the slashing character of the Allied assault, which in 25 days had inflicted a major catastrophe on German forces in Italy and liberated Rome almost without damage to the historic city.

Joining the relentless program of destruction, 50 American heavy bombers blasted rail yards at five points in northern Italy between Venice and Rimini along which the Germans might attempt to move reinforcements and equipment to bolster Marshal Albert Kesselring's beaten armies.

Included in the area reported abandoned is the port of Ostia.

Fighting has "flared up on the central Italian front where New Zealanders are strongly pressing towards the upper Sangro valley," said the broadcast, and "this move seems to indicate that the Allied offensive may soon spread along the entire Italian front right to the Adriatic."

Withdrawal of the German lines on the Adriatic end of the front was forecast by a Berlin radio spokesman in a broadcast recorded by the ministry of information.

CLARK LAUDS VALOR

At 10 a. m. today (3 a. m. Atlanta time), Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark, tall commander of the victorious Fifth Army, entered Rome in a jeep and drove to the city hall, where he formally proclaimed the Allied occupation and praised the valor of his troops.

Addressing his corps commanders and looking out over thousands of cheering Italians, Clark declared that both the 10th and 14th German armies had been at least partially destroyed more than 20,000 prisoners taken and untold quantities of Nazi equipment captured.

He lauded individually the French, British and American troops of the Fifth Army and paid tribute to the "gallant men and women who made the supreme sacrifice" that made today's occupation possible. Mussolini's famous balcony in the Palazzo Venezia, a few blocks from where Clark spoke, looked empty and deserted.

WILSON LAUDS DRAFTEES

General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson expressed particular admiration for "the dash and fighting spirit" of the U. S. 85th and 88th Division—first selective service divisions to serve on the front lines during the current Italian offensive.

The comment of the Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean theater was made in reply to a message of congratulations from President Roosevelt on the success of the campaign in Italy.

Pope Pius XII, addressing an enormous crowd, including many Fifth Army soldiers, in St. Peter's square, expressed thanks to God that Rome had not been destroyed by war.

The inhabitants' reception to the troops approached hysteria as the day wore on, and home-made

Nazi Barrier Far Off

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, June 5.—(AP)—The German 10th and 14th armies will have to retreat another 150 miles before finding a defense line with natural advantages such as that at Cassino.

The Germans probably will fight any number of delaying actions at points permitting a stand of a day or two, but the most popular guess is that they will fall back to what is called the Rimini-Pisa line for their next real defense. This is where the northern Appennines provide a formidable barrier across Italy.

Prince Umberto Becomes Regent

NAPLES, June 5.—(AP)—King Vittorio Emanuele III stepped aside as monarch of Italy today as he previously had said he would do upon the liberation of Rome and handed to his 39-year-old son, Crown Prince Umberto, all "royal prerogatives."

Italian political pressure had been brought to bear against him since the conquest of Naples.

In a decree signed by himself and countersigned by Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, head of the Italian liberation government, the King named his son lieutenant general of the realm.

The monarch, however, retained his title as head of the House of Savoy and remains as King without power.

MERE FIGUREHEAD

King Vittorio Emanuele, who became ruler July 29, 1900, had announced last April 12 his "irrevocable" decision to withdraw from public life "on the day on which Allied troops enter Rome," and to turn his powers over to the crown prince.

Little more than a figurehead since Mussolini assumed the dictatorship of Italy, Vittorio Emanuele had won a reputation the first years of his reign as a sympathetic monarch, interested in his people and their problems.

Prince Umberto, tall and erect, opposed Fascism in Italy at the start but later made a truce with Mussolini.

In effect, Umberto becomes the King's regent.

TEXT OF DECREE

The withdrawal was presented to the council of ministers this morning, an announcement by the ministry of the interior said tonight. The decree was signed by the King today at Ravello.

The King's withdrawal decree:

"I Vittorio Emanuele III, by the grace of God and by the will of the nation King of Italy, in collaboration with the president of the council of ministers and with the agreement of the council has ordered and order as follows:

"My beloved son, Umberto of Savoy, Prince of Piedmont, is nominated our lieutenant general. In collaboration with responsible ministers he will in our name superintend all matters of administration and exercise all royal prerogatives without exception, signing royal decrees which will be countersigned and authenticated in the usual way.

"We order all concerned to observe this decree and to see that it is observed as the law of the state.

"Given at Ravello the fifth of June, 1944.

"Signed Vittorio Emanuele. Countersigned Pietro Badoglio."

Robbery Victim Picks 'Bumper'

Atlanta police believed they had apprehended one of the ringleaders in a pickpocket gang which has been operating here for several weeks, when a victim identified W. J. Hesch, in a police line-up yesterday.

Hesch, 26, who gave his address as Newport, Ky., was identified by H. H. Humphries, of Gainesville, as the man who bumped into him at the bus station on May 22, shortly before he missed his wallet and $100.

Detectives John Crankshaw and Glyn Cowan arrested Hesch Saturday on charges of suspicion of robbery, when a stolen wallet was found in his possession. The wallet, belonging to Julius Littman, of Dayton, O., contained $197. Hesch is being held without bond.

295 Georgia Graduates Hear Miss Neel Deliver Valedictory

ATHENS, Ga., June 5.—(AP)—The University of Georgia's first woman valedictorian, Miss Eugenia Neel, of Atlanta, whose personal losses in the war include one brother killed and another missing in action, today asked graduates to educate themselves in the brotherhood of humanities so "that our sons 20 years hence will not be sacrificed in a third world war."

"Not technological preparation alone, but a liberal education will solve the all-important problem of international co-operation," she said.

"This feeling of co-operation will go far in achieving an enduring peace, a task which, in large part, is a problem of developing a truly world culture, a world society in which the values of all races and all cultures are so recognized that we shall never have a third world war."

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, in his annual message to the graduates, advocated that youth groups be represented at the peace conference "for the youth of our land are paying the price now for the mess our generation has made of the world and youth will have to rebuild the world when the war is over."

Prize winners announced at the exercises were: E. A. Burdett Memorial medal, for excellence in English, to Miss Margaret Anne Womack, of Decatur; Craig Barrow prize, for excellence in music, to Miss Joy Barnett, of Atlanta; Horace Russell prize (psychology), to Allen Perry Mixon, of Patterson; the Leo I. Meinhard Memorial award, for highest average in senior law class, to Robert Lee Royal, of Sycamore; Sigma Delta Chi scholarship awards (journalism), Miss Ann Eley Allison, of Live Oak, Fla.; Miss Joy Myrtle Barnett, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Rhona Koplin Leftkowitz, Atlanta.

Following the exercises, Judge Frank D. Foley, of Columbus, inducted the graduates into the University Alumni Society. Judge Foley was asked to continue as president of the society for another term.

Portraits of Dr. Joseph Leconte, for whom Leconte Hall is named, and Miss Mary E. Creswell, dean of the school of home economics, were presented during the alumni meeting.

In addition to Judge Foley, other officers installed were J. Ralph Thaxton, Athens, recording secretary; district vice presidents: first district, Alec Lawrence, Savannah; second, J. E. Bower, Bainbridge; third, Madden Hatcher, Columbus; fourth, Stanford Arnold, Newnan; fifth, George T. Northern, Atlanta; sixth, R. Lanier Anderson, Macon; seventh, James P. Vote in Primary, Mayor Asks Of Atlantans

Citizens of metropolitan Atlanta have been urged by Mayor Hartsfield to "assume the responsibilities of citizenship" and cast their ballots in the July 4 primary.

Pointing out that the European invasion is imminent, that transportation facilities already are taxed beyond capacity, the mayor urged citizens not to attempt to leave Atlanta for the holiday, and asked citizens of other communities to refrain from visiting Atlanta.

In his latter stand, he reversed a long-standing slogan which invited all to "come to Atlatna."

"July 4, this year, falls on Tuesday, and many persons will have an extended weekend off," Hartsfield said. "The United States Conference of Mayors has issued an appeal urging citizens to stay at home, and not attempt to travel.

"Another important consideration for Georgians, and especially Atlantans, is that the primary falls that day. Those who travel out of the city for pleasure on that day and fail to vote will shirk their responsibilities. I hope citizens of metropolitan Atlanta will stay within voting distance of the polls."

Styles Stay, Clothiers Hear

A streamlined production of men's apparel, rather than streamlined styles, will be the theme of fall fashions.

According to members of the Southeastern Men's Apparel Club, currently holding a four-day session at the Henry Grady hotel which will end Thursday afternoon, war conditions will curtail any decided change in masculine styles. These opinions are backed by displays of men's clothing on exhibit at the hotel through the courtesy of national manufacturing companies.

W. L. Stensgaard, head of a merchandising display firm in Chicago, in speaking to men's apparel retailers at a luncheon yesterday, said, "Selling is a science, not a job for a jerk." He predicted the establishment of schools for the purpose of training retail salesmen. "Salesmen today are giving the customer poorer information about the merchandise they want to buy than ever before," Stensbaard stated.

The display authority also foresaw national advertising of related items. "Manufacturers of shirts, ties and handkerchiefs will combine their advertisements in order to give people the effect that these items will give when combined," Stensgaard said.

Stensgaard sees more showmanship in retailing for the postwar period—the kind of showmanship that dramatizes simple things. He told of the recent use of showmanship in selling war bonds. In closing his speech, the Chicago man urged, "Buy more war bonds today, nothing else matters right now."

The next meeting of the 1,500 retail merchants hailing from Georgia, Florida and Alabama will be held tomorrow night in the Dixie ballroom of the Henry Grady. They will be entertained with a banquet, floor show and dance starting at 7 p. m.

Officers in charge of the programs and displays are R. H. Young, president; A. J. Christopher, first vice president; W. R. Merton, second vice president; Simon Ullman, secretary; H. B. Tenzler, treasurer, and J. M. Kirstein, chairman of the board of directors.

South Is Told To 'Shake' Ills

By LORRAINE NELSON.

A remedy offering the south its best chance to shake off its economic ills was pictured here by Leland Olds, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, speaking last night before the 42nd annual meeting of the Atlanta Freight Bureau.

"That redress lies in your rivers—nearly a score of them," Olds told 300 Atlanta businessmen. "Developed for navigation, power and other natural resources, those rivers can be the basis for a well-balanced postwar rural industrial economy in the south," Olds declared.

"The south is faced today with the necessity of developing its industries to compete with manufacturing in the north, or, the only alternative—migration of surplus population."

Higher freight rates in the south, as opposed to lower ones in the north, make wide scale development of manufacturing inadvisable, Olds continued. On the other hand, he insisted that migration cannot be accepted. The cure, as Olds sees it, lies in the navigable rivers, full utilization of which could mean lower cost freight transporttaion, he says.

But, he added, it would be a mistake to develop the rivers of the southeast for navigation alone, pointing out that power potentialities of the southeastern rivers could make available 3,500,000 kilowatts of power which could be expected to encourage the investment of about $3,000,000,000 in new industries.

DIRECTORS NAMED

Preceding Olds' address, the following were nominated as directors for the Atlanta Freight Bureau in 1944-45: G. A. Austin, J. R. Bachman, J. S. Bagwell, George Beattie, Charlie Brown, D. E. Clark, R. A Clark, H. S. Collinsworth, John M. Cooper, J. J. Doran, W. E. DuPre, Arthur Harris Jr., Donald Hastings, Bolling Jones Jr., F. A. Jordan, H. L. Litchfield, Harold Montag, Dean S. Paden, Jack Pappenheimer, E. S. Papy, W. A. Parker, Luther Randall, Meyer Regenstein, I. W. Tull, R. W. Underwood, John A. White, W. B. Willingham Jr. and C. B. Wilson.

Y To Celebrate 100th Birthday

The birthday of the Y. M. C. A., being celebrated internationally for the 100th time today, will be marked in Atlanta with a day of full events.

George Winship, treasurer of the Atlanta Y and president of the Morris Plan Bank, will review a "Century of Service" for members of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club at their 12:30 p. m. luncheon. Donald Pittard, former Hi-Y president at Boys' High school and now a student at Emory University, will explain "The Y's Meaning to Me as a Hi-Y Member" at the Atlanta Civitan Club luncheon beginning at high noon.

Later, from 4 to 9 p. m., the 3,000 boys, age 8 to 18, belonging to the Atlanta Y, will hold open house for their parents. The Toastmaster Club, hosts for the event, will show the moving films depicting the Y. M. C. A.'s first 100 years.

Ernest Woodruff, 81, Dies; Funeral Rites Today

Ernest Woodruff, 81, for more than half a century one of the south's most outstanding business and civic developers, died yesterday morning at Emory hospital. He had been ill several months.

Born at Columbus, Ga., in 1863, in the midst of the War Between the States, Woodruff achieved brilliant success as an industrialist, a banker and capitalist, and equally remarkable success as a leader in civic and philanthropic work.

His business enterprises included the Coca-Cola Company, which he served as a director and member of the company's executive committee until his retirement several years ago; the Trust Company of Georgia, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company, the Continental Gin Company and the Atlantic Steel Company. His fortune is estimated at several millions.

FUNERAL RITES TODAY

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. today at Springhill, with Dr. William V. Gardner and Dr. R. C. Gresham, of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. Interment will be in West View cemetery, with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers will be Thomas K. Glenn, J. N. Goddard, John Sibley, Harrison Jones, Colonel C. A. Wickersham, George T. Adams, of Wilmington, Del.; W. C. Bradley, of Columbus, Ga., and S. F. Boykin, of Wilmington, Del.; R. W. Bowling and W. M. Brownlee.

Officers and directors of the Trust Company of Georgia, the Coca-Cola Company, the Continental Gin Company and the Atlantic Steel Company will serve as an honorary escort.

Among those paying tribute to Woodruff was Alfred C. Newell, of 78 W. Wesley road, retired newspaper and insurance man, who was night city editor of The Constitution in 1898.

LIFELONG FRIEND

Newell, lifelong friend of "the chief," a favorite nickname for Woodruff, believes his record of "unselfish contribution toward the financial upbuilding of Atlanta and the south" is incomparable.

"If I could find one word to characterize his life, it would be loyalty," said Newell. "His dominant traits were unselfishness and self-effacement. The life of Ernest Woodruff will inspire books to be written about him and his work.

"I think," he continued, "that the following lines summarize Ernest's career: 'He breasted the blows of circumstance, he grasped at the hands of happy chance, and made by force his merit known.'"

SAW SOUTH RECOVER

Ernest Woodruff was a native Georgian who achieved outstanding success as a banker, a capitalist and an industrialist and an equally outstanding leadership in civic and philanthropic work.

Woodruff was a constructive force in the creation of the New South and the financial rewards he gained were in proportion to the caliber of his initiative and leadership.

He lived to see the south recover from the devastation of that conflict and to rebuild itself as an integral part of a greater union. In that work of rebuilding, Woodruft played one of the leading roles.

Woodruff was a son of George Waldo Woodruff, a Connecticut Yankee who settled in Columbus in 1847, engaging first in the dry goods business, then in sawmilling and finally as organizer and director of the Empire Flour Mills. These mills at the time of the birth of Ernest were manufacturing flour for the Confederate government.

BOUGHT COCA-COLA

Receiving his education in the schools of Columbus and attending a business college there, Woodruff joined his father in the flour business and eventually became vice president. It was the first stage of a long and highly successful business career—a career that embraced important phases of public utility operation, banking and industrial organization and management.

The climax of his business career came in 1919, when, with a group of associates, he purchased the Coca-Cola Company from the late Asa G. Candler for $25,000,000. Prior to his retirement some years ago, he spent much of his time in developing that enterprise into the worldwide business that it is today.

Woodruff moved to Atlanta in 1893. Soon afterwards he became vice president and general manager of the old Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway Company. This concern later was merged with the Georgia Railway & Electric Company, now known as the Georgia Power Company.

FINE BUSINESSMAN

Some years later Woodruff turned his energies into banking and, in 1904, became president of the Trust Company of Georgia, a position he held until 1922. During this period of active banking activity he was also president of the Atlantic Ice and Coal Company and was a prime mover in the reorganization proceedings for the Atlantic Steel Company and the Continental Gin Company. At the time of his death he retained his directorships in the Trust Company of Georgia and the Atlantic Steel Company.

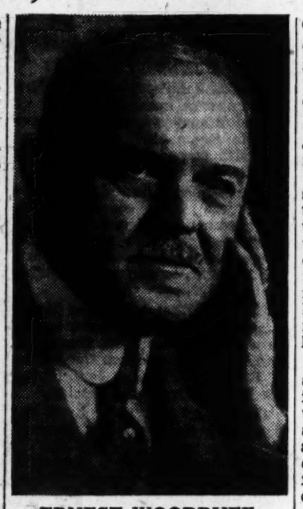
When he retired from the presidency of the Trust Company of Georgia in 1922 Woodruff began gradually to divest himself of his many business responsibilities. The Coca-Cola deal, however, offered him an opportunity for the display of great business initiative and he plunged again into the business field with his usual success. From 1919 until several years prior to his death he was a director and the chairman of the executive committee of this company. His initiative was largely responsible for the tremendous increase in its business and its profits.

MANY PHILANTHROPIES

Woodruff was married on April 22, 1895, to Emily Caroline Winship, daughter of Robert Winship, pioneer industrialist of Atlanta. For many years they were active in the religious, charitable and philanthropic life of the city. They were members of the First Presbyterian Church of Atlanta and contributed to its growth and development.

He likewise was interested in the work of the Rabun Gap-Nacoochee School for mountain children and contributed liberally to its support. He also aided in the development and expansion of the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital of Atlanta. In addition, he provided the funds for the fountain in Hurt Park, in front of the city auditorium.

Upon Woodruff's retirement from active business he and Mrs. Woodruff lived for a time on their farm near Richmond, Va. But in 1938 they re-established their residence in Atlanta and at the same time climaxed their mutual interest in charitable and philanthropic activities through the establishment of the Emily and Ernest Woodruff Foundation.



ERNEST WOODRUFF.

THREE SONS SURVIVE

This enterprise, chartered in July, 1938, had an original endowment of $1,000,000. When Mrs. Woodruff died the following year, she left three-quarters of her estate to charitable and philanthropic activities and in this way the foundation came into an additional $3,000,000. The funds of this foundation are to be used for the three purposes Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff felt were most needful—religion, education and hospitilization and medical care.

With their usual foresight, Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff, in establishing this foundation, directed that the funds be used to assist the aged, the diseased and the poor and also that it aid "deserving individuals as may be in need of financial assistance to obtain their education."

Woodruff is survived by three sons—Robert Winship Woodruff, of Wilmington, Del., and George W. Woodruff, of Daytona Beach, Fla., both of whom are active in the management of the Coca-Cola corporation, and Henry F. Woodruff, of Richmond, Va.; three grandchildren, Mrs. Alfred B. Michael Jr., Frances Woodruff and James Woodruff, children of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Woodruff; the following nephews and nieces: James Woodruff, George Woodruff, Mrs. Clifford Swift, of Columbus, Ga.; Mrs. Charles Bickerstaff and Mrs. Ben Sims, both of Atlanta; Joel Hurt Jr. and Sherwood Hurt, of Miami, and a sister, Mrs. Joel Hurt, of Atlanta.

STUBBORN CASE OF CONSTIPATION GONE

"No more salts, oils, every day," writes ex-sufferer

Want to stop dosing—and yet keep regular? Then read this unsolicited letter from Mr. Lowe.

"I am 71 years old. Today I'm in the best of health. But, for 15 years I had a stubborn case of constipation—had to rely on salts or castor oil every day. Got so weak I could hardly walk. Five months ago I read one of your ads and my wife advised me to try your ALL-BRAN. After first week my passage was normal. For 5 months I have been eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly and haven't taken a laxative. Thanks for ALL-BRAN'S grand relief." Frank Lowe, 4303 S. W. 9th St., Des Moines, Iowa.

You'll be interested in knowing exactly how KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN helps so many people—how this wholesome cereal gets at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary cellulosic elements. You see ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora to fluff up and prepare wastes for easy elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative, it is a "regulating" food.

If your constipation is this kind, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly — and drink plenty of water. See if it doesn't help. Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Nazis Say Rome's Fall Strikes Their Prestige

LONDON, June 5.—(AP)—The Germans conceded today that the fall of Rome was a blow to their prestige, while the thunder of Allied bombs bursting on channel edge fortifications told Adolf Hitler in a language he could understand that a gathering storm from the west was sweeping nearer.

"Giving up one of the Axis capitals involves a loss of prestige for Germany."

With the ceaseless aerial batter-

Hitler's high command rushed to the radio to say the Germans had "withdrawn" from Rome. But dispatches to Stockholm of the German-controlled Scandinavian press bureau gave this summary of Berlin newspaper comment:

ing of the Atlantic wall, Britons awaited expectant and confident for the ground assault and some recalled Prime Minister Churchill's words after Dunkerque to a hushed commons and a tense nation just four years and a day ago:

"We shall never surrender . . . We will carry on the struggle until in God's good time the new world in all its strength and might sets forth to the rescue and liberation of the old."

Battle-clad Canadians and a great United States Army mechanized and equipped for a tremendous part in that promised task of liberation now are swarming over this island.

A Berlin broadcast, in an apparent attempt to belittle the setbacks in Italy, declared that "if the enemy wants to force a decisive battle then we must carry out an invasion in the west on a grand scale."

Lord Woolton, minister of reconstruction, implied the Germans might not have long to wait. Commenting on Rome's capture, he said: "I am sure it is a precursor of things that are to come."

A message read for the fallen Benito Mussolini from his retreat in northern Italy called on the Romans to "make life as hard as possible" for Allied troops, but it must have been a hollow echo in a city resounding to shouts of citizens welcoming their liberators.

A communique from the German high command reported violent fighting raged northeast of Rome, and said a last-minute attempt had been made to declare it an open city.

To a German nation shaken by Rome's fall, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' workers declared tonight that the Allies faced a much harder task in the west because "never has there been a coast in the world so ready for defense as the Atlantic wall."

Correspondent Lutz Koch, broadcasting from the west wall which he toured with Marshal Edwin Rommel, reported that along the beach were "tens of thousands of tree trunks all wire-mined into a deadly net" which would become "an exploding forest."

The Moscow radio broadcast a Geneva report, however, that mass arrests were being made in Germany on charges of defeatism, a reign of terror by the Gestapo was reported in France where even Vichy officials were reported under surveillance, and a Tass dispatch from Zurich said a Nazi iron rule was tightening throughout Austria, Alsace-Lorraine, Slovakia and Moravia.

The German army bulletin said the Allies in southern Italy "tried to force us to send reserves to this war theater" which were being held ready "for the probable war theater in the west," but had failed.

Diplomats expected the Italian military success to be their high trump card as they pressed to shut off the last vestige of supplies to Germany through neutral countries.

The London press hailed the conquest as "a great milestone of war" and the Evening Standard said the campaign was "a prelude to a yet greater campaign in which the stakes must be doubled and quadrupled."

"The legions of freedom are marching and the waning power of the tyrant cannot hold them back," said the Star.

Russians Vision Italy's Seizure

MOSCOW, June 5.—(AP)—News of the Allied capture of Rome was received enthusiastically in Moscow today as a sign of impending complete occupation of Italy and defeat of Germany.

Major General Mikhail Galaktionov, reviewing the victory in an article in Pravda, used the warmest words of praise yet given here to an Allied military operation.

Sir General Harold Alexander's plan was described as "excellent," its execution "perfect" and its result "of the most important politically and strategic significance."

Italy

confetti soon littered the streets. There was an almost carnival atmosphere. Little damage to the city was visible, the Nazis having limited demolitions to a few installations of no artistic or religious importance.

The speed of the enemy's flight once his lines before Rome burst was evident in the great quantities of war material left behind, stockpiles sufficient to equip several divisions. An Allied spokesman expressed the official opinion that the tremendous pressure exerted by the Allies in the final phase of the battle for Rome had forced the enemy to flee beyond the capital rather than make a protracted fight for the city itself.

24-HOUR MOP-UP

The great circle in front of St. Peter's was crowded with townspeople, but no Allied soldiers entered the area.

Just 24 hours after the first Allied troops made their way through dense minefields and broke into the southeastern suburbs of the city at 8 a. m. yesterday, the leading elements had passed completely through the capital and the last German sniper had been killed or captured.

Hour after hour the Allied warplanes swept down on highways leading northward and tore the fleeing enemy apart. Twelve hundred Nazi transport vehicles were destroyed from dawn to dark yesterday, and hundreds more today. Farther north medium bombers smashed bridges and rail facilities, leaving wreckage and fire that one airman said looked like "the city dump on burning day."

GEORGIAN SEES CARNAGE

"A vast amount of enemy equipment was left burning in a dozen places," said Lieutenant David W. Johnson, 105 Brandsford road, Augusta, Ga., referring to the strafing of Route 3. "Jerry soldiers were lying dead beside their vehicles all along the road."

British Eighth Army forces advancing from the east continued to meet stubborn opposition, particularly northeast of Valmontone, where the Germans were fighting in fixed mountain defense positions. The enemy had been driven completely out of the Sacco valley, clearing the towns of Fiuggi, Piglio, Paliano, Guarcino and Cave. Palestrina, astride an important retreat road four and a half miles north of Valmontone, was seized by Allied troops yesterday.

The British were encountering demolitions on a major scale, and an Allied spokesman said the Italian villages they were being forced to storm were perched on rocky eminences several hundred feet high. The Nazis had mined all the approaches, and covered the roads with heavy fire.

BRITISH NEAR TIBER

British troops on the coastal flank of the Allied advance pressed to within six miles of the Tiber river below Rome. Hopes of trapping the entire German force in this sector appeared to be bright, as few bridges over the Tiber were available to them. An Allied drive from Rome to the coast would seal their line of retreat.

Fifth Army troops pushing through the Alban hills captured the towns of Gottaferrata, Marino and Genzano and by-passed some enemy pockets of resistance. As evidence of the disorganization of the German forces in that area, it was disclosed that 377 prisoners taken at Velletri represented 50 different companies.

Burnedout German combat vehicles in the streets of Rome offered abundant evidence that the enemy turned the Eternal City into a battleground yesterday, at least to the extent of fighting a delaying action from block to block.

Some inhabitants reported that the enemy mounted guns on the roof of the Basilica of Saint John Lateran, which is Vatican extra-territorial property, but this was not officially confirmed.

MUSSOLINI RAVES

The Romans look thinner than they did before the war, but they were very happy today and there was no doubt they were glad to see the Americans, and to be delivered from the Germans. There was no special guard around the Vatican.

An Allied soldier stood with a comrade on the marble balcony overlooking Palazzo Venezia, where Mussolini used to harangue and made a speech about the fallen dictator.

'Death Discipline' Hovers Nearer Unruly Germans

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, declaring five years of war had "excessively taxed" the German war machine and exposed it to "various ailments," appealed today to German soldiers to display "more initiative" on the field of battle.

At the same time U. S. government monitors said, the German high command issued an order calling for freer imposition of death sentences on members of the armed forces, to maintain "discipline or the security of troops."

The high command order, according to a dispatch transmitted for the German press, was intended to supplement the general wartime penal code. It provided that all established penalties ought to be raised to the maximum" if the sound instinct of the people considers the normal penalty inadequate."

morning meeting also received this message from General Roberto Bencivenga to Badoglio:

"In the name of the government of Italy and the King and on behalf of the Allies, I have temporarily assumed command of the civil and military affairs of Rome and her territory situated in the war zone. Vive Italia."

Liberal Italian leaders loudly demanded abdication of Vittorio Emanuele after the conquest of Naples. The King's decision to retire from public life paved the way for a compromise and formation of an enlarged war cabinet under Marshal Badoglio in which each of the six political parties forming a liberation junta was represented.

Crown Prince Umberto early in 1943 began to come more and more into political prominence. Tasks that would be assigned only to a leader of some political importance were given him, including a radio address to calm the Italian people fearful under heavy Allied air raids, and issuance of an order of the day calling upon Italian soldiers to fight harder.

Umberto, Prince of Piedmont, became a general at the age of 29, and achieved the rank of marshal in September, 1942. He married Marie-Jose of Belgium in 1930; they have four children.

3 Boys Given Fire Awards

The best junior fire inspectors in Atlanta are three boys, two from junior high and one from grammar school, according to the Atlanta fire department.

For being judged the best promoters of fire prevention of any students in Atlanta's schools, the department yesterday awarded $10 in war stamps to Lewis Lowe, of Bass Junior High school, and Fred Carey, of Kingsbery school. Carl Cooper, of Hoke Smith Junior High school, ran such a close second to Lewis that he received a special award of $5 in war stamps.

Under a fire prevention program sponsored by the Atlanta fire department, two students from each city school are selected to educate the other students on common fire hazards and practice of fire prevention habits.

These students hold class discussions, distribute educational literature, conduct all school fire drills and clean-up campaigns, and make monthly reports to the Atlanta fire department.

Hungry 'Mountaineers' Given Credit for Capturing of Rome

By KENNETH DIXON.

ROME, June 5.—(AP)—The mountaineers came down out of the mountains yesterday and moved into Rome along a road dyed red with roses and their own blood.

Bearded, eyes bored deep into their faces from sheer fatigue, they came down from the Alban hills to fight into the suburbs where machineguns, mortars and tanks of the enemy were holding up the advance.

They call themselves the Mountaineers because they have fought through the mountains, these kids who have behind them the battles of Salerno, Altaville, San Pietro, the Rapido river and Cassino.

They may not have been the first to enter the city but they deserve the honor for they are the ones who infiltrated thousands strong through the last main German line before Rome.

I came in with them yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock and two German tanks on the last lap of the ancient Roman road made it plain nobody had been there before us.

So did the snipers and machine-gun nests which pinned us down for three hours before we were able to move on into Rome.

They had just come from this great, decisive infiltration move in which they had shifted thousands of men three miles behind the German lines beyond Velletri with almost no casualties.

When the race of all divisions in this area, all reconnaissance outfits—all everything—started toward Rome yesterday it looked at first like the lads who made it possible might be lost in the shuffle.

But when the Germans cut loose in the suburbs the guys who were running the great Rome handicap—jeeps and command cars—naturally called back for the infantry.

And so naturally the mountaineers came up, this time riding in trucks, hopped out, and took to the slopes, sloughs and draws where the snipers, who had killed or wounded more than 20 in the company I accompanied, were hidden.

Some of them were unfed for nearly 48 hours, others had been living on only one canteen of water for two days, but they kept on going and dozens were mowed down.

Between such tragedies they stuck into their helmets roses handed them by Italian families along the way, drank the water poured by other friendly natives, and moved on into the city they had been hoping to occupy for the past nine months.

It is a strange commentary on the capture of Rome that the Doughboys were met by some people throwing flowers—and others throwing lead.

20 Miles of Paving Approved by Council

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

City council has given the green light to a joint City-Fulton county street resurfacing program costing $270,000 and providing new paving for more than 20 miles of Atlanta thoroughfares.

The council in session yesterday:

1. Awarded to Sam E. Finley, Inc., eight paving projects calling for an outlay of $88,154, and for resurfacing about five miles of traffic arteries.

2. Asked the Fulton county commission to join in sharing the cost of repaving 16 other street stretches containing about 15 miles of surface at a cost of $181,163. Alderman Ed. A. Gilliam, chairman of city council public works and finance committees, said he and Clarke Donaldson, city construction chief, and other members of the public works group would urge this action at the commission meeting slated for tomorrow.

3. Appropriated $20,000 to employ free labor to execute a street repair program, urged by Donaldson to supplement available prison labor.

In addition to the street program initiated, the council also looked to the future in naming Henry B. Andrews, city land agent, to negotiate for rights of way for extension of Juniper street from Twelfth to Fifteenth and sent to the public works group a proposal from Fulton county to provide engineering services and labor for widening and extending Williams street northward into Dellwood drive.

The council also:

1. Requested the legislature to allow the city to deed to Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion, 40 feet on Piedmont avenue and extending 200 feet into Piedmont park to expand to meet an anticipated post membership of 5,000.

2. Passed a series of measures designed to settle a controversy concerning the erection of the Westmeath war housing project in West End, and heard Mayor Pro Tem John T. Marler announce the compromise contemplates an end to all litigation which resulted.

3. Re-elected Joe Richardson, clerk of council for the past eight years, to a new four-year term by unanimous vote.

4. Paved the way for construction of a new Negro nurses' home at Grady hospital when it agreed to exchange city-owned property on Pratt street for a strip owned by Emory University on Piedmont avenue. It is proposed to erect the nurses' home on the Emory property.

5. Sent to the Carnegie Library board a proposal by Alderman Raleigh Drennon and Councilmen Ralph Huie and Howard Haire, members of the sixth ward delegation in council, to establish a branch library for Morningside.

6. Voted to abolish all afternoon sessions of the city recorders' courts on Saturdays at the request of the Atlanta Bar Association, a suggestion in which Judges Callaway and Arnold concurred.

7. Authorized the purchase of gas and riot shells and machineguns for the police department.

8. Voted a fund of $1,200 for repainting whiteway posts in downtown Atlanta and another $12,075 to repoint the northern and eastern walls of the municipal auditorium.

9. Instructed city department heads to prepare proposed postwar improvements under the jurisdiction of their respective divisions, estimating costs and manhours of employment required for execution of the separate projects. This was sponsored by Councilman John A. White.

10. Adopted a White resolution thanking the state highway department and the Georgia Power Company for co-operating with the city in resurfacing Piedmont avenue and Peachtree streets.

Kentucky's Head Threatened With Impeachment

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 5.—(AP)—A resolution proposing that a joint legislative committee investigate Governor Simeon Willis' official acts and recommend whether or not impeachment proceedings should be brought against him was introduced in the house of representatives tonight.

The resolution, offered by Johnston Miller, Taylorsville Democrat, charged Willis since taking office last December 7 had "refuted his campaign pledges" to repeal the state income tax, to live within state income, to reduce state operating expenses, to give local and county governments control over such matters as taxes and highways, and was responsible for the present special session stalemate over education appropriations.

south the Chindits pressed forward near Waingmaw.

Kamaing, 40 miles to the west, was being attacked by Allied troops from positions four and one-half miles east and six and one-half miles southeast of the city, and is "now more closely invested," said the bulletin from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Ceylon headquarters, while west of the Mogaung river, Chinese pushing southward took another village.

On the India side of the Burma campaign, the city of Kohima was reported reliably to have been cleared completely of Japanese, although some units were clinging to the overlooking hills.

An American column advancing toward Mokmer airdrome on Biak island, in the Schoutens, has outflanked Japanese positions in the ridges north of the airfield.

One column, driven back last week by murderous fire from hill positions, was retracing its steps along the coastal road after cliff-scaling Yanks had cleaned out machinegun and sniper nests. The other was atop the coastal ridge from which Japanese sharp-shooters had been driven.

The American spearheads were pointed toward Mokmer and two other airdromes on Biak, largest island of the Schouten group. These air fields would place American bombers within 880 miles of the southern Philippines, where the Japanese have major land, air and sea bases in the Davao sector.

The Monday communique from General MacArthur's headquarters said the Japanese threw air power into the Biak fight. A score of Nippon fighter planes attempted to dive-bomb the American beachhead. Allied air patrols shot down eight while ack-ack accounted for a ninth.

Group Attends Mission Camp

The ole swimmin' hole and its icy spring waters look mighty inviting to 46 happy little girls who are camping out this summer because of the generosity of Atlanta citizens.

The first contingent of youngsters, ages six to 15, left Atlanta yesterday morning for Mountain View camp, south of Hapeville, where they will spend a week or more, depending upon the number of Atlantans who open their hearts—and their pocketbooks during the summer.

Mountain View is owned and operated by the Atlanta Mission, and is supported entirely by contributions. The girls who go camping are children of low-wage families, and are recommended by their school teachers. Five dollars will send a girl to camp for a week, and $50 will maintain a cabin of girls for a week, according to the Rev. Felton Williams, executive director.

With the opening of the camp yesterday, the girls checked out their camp clothes and bed linen, made up their beds, and then hurried down to the stream, over to take a look at the new "rec" hall, donated by the Atlanta Variety Club and now nearing completion, and back to play on the new slide, swings and merry-go-round. Solemn little faces soon were all smiles as the fun got under way.

Some of the youngsters have never been away from hot city pavements before, and for many of them this is their first camping experience.

Help Conserve The Doctor's Time

By H. C. NAYLOR, Pres. Lane Drug Stores, Inc.

Doctors are never so important as in war time. While we are conserving on consumer items, let's help keep the doctor fit and ready for emergency work that may come.

Avoid calling him at night unless there really is something wrong that won't wait. Barring accidents and unpredictable events, it ought to be possible to consult the doctor during day time hours.

Of course it is important to see him too before a minor ailment becomes a major illness, but now when he is so busy try to arrange your visit at a time convenient to him.

Follow his advice strictly. Use medication supplied by a trusted druggist. (c)

State Ends Testimony In Davis Murder Trial

Trial of R. A. Davis on a murder charge will be resumed this morning in Judge Paul S. Etheridge's division of Fulton superior court.

Davis is charged with slaying Thomas Daniel near a small cafe on Boulevard.

The state completed presentation of testimony late yesterday and the defense rested after a statement by Davis. Judge J. R. Parham, of the prosecutor's staff, announced he would present rebuttal testimony this morning, and, after the defense has another inning, a charge from the judge is slated to send the case to the jury.

Carrier 'Block Island' Is Sunk by Enemy Action

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Loss of the United States escort carrier Block Island by enemy action in the Atlantic was announced today by the Navy.

Casualties, the Navy said, were "light." The announcement did not explain how the vessel went down—whether by submarine action, gunfire, aerial bombs or mines.

The Block Island was the first American aircraft carrier announced lost in the Atlantic in the war.

Navy communique No. 523 said:

"Atlantic:

"1. The escort carrier U. S. S. Block Island was sunk in the Atlantic during May, 1944, as the result of enemy action.

"2. The next of kin of casualties, which were light, have been notified."

The Block Island was commanded by Captain Francis M. Hughes, of Selma, Ala., a native of Charlottesville, Va.

The carrier was launched June 6, 1942. Escort carriers generally are converted vessels, with flight decks built on merchant ship type hulls.

The Block Island was the 158th Navy ship lost in the war. One other escort carrier, the Liscome Bay, has been sunk. She went down in action during the Gilbert island landings last November. Four big carriers—the Lexington, Yorktown, Wasp and Hornet—have been lost in the Pacific war.

One battleship, the Arizona, was destroyed in the Pearl Harbor attack. The other ships include six heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, 41 destroyers, 23 submarines and 88 miscellaneons craft.

Georgia Claims Major Victory In Business Income Tax Case

Attorney General I. Grady Head claims a major victory for the state of Georgia in a corporation income tax case.

The case involved the pharmaceutical house of Parke, Davis & Company, of Michigan, which brought suit in Fulton county superior court in an effort to void a section of Georgia's income tax law affecting interstate commerce.

Under the law, Georgia has a formula for levying taxes on companies which do business both inside and outside the state, but whose main office is outside. Parke, Davis & Company held that products shipped to its Atlanta warehouse, then sold other southern states were not taxable.

Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton superior court, held that such business was taxable.

Head declared that while the case involved only about $3,000, its outcome affected other business of this nature, such as railroad and bus fares, and that "a tremendous amount of money was involved."

Watch Constitution Want Ads, and save a lot of money on household goods, office equipment and building materials.

Subsidy Limit Set by Senate

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—The senate swept aside protests of Majority Leader Barley, Kentucky, today by amending legislation extending the price and wage stabilization act to prohibit payment of food subsidies after June 30, 1945, without congressional direction.

It adopted, by a vote of 50 to 22, an amendment prohibiting after that date either subsidy payments or government buying of commodities for the purpose of selling them at a loss to keep consumer costs down unless the money "has been appropriated by congress for such purpose."

Barkley declared the people generally and even the farmers were "reasonably satisfied" with the subsidy program, while Senator Maloney, Democrat, Connecticut, warned:

"We may be setting up dangers which will prove great."

Maloney asserted that the Office of Price Administration is in a better position than congress to determine when subsidies are necessary.

All the 22 votes against the amendment were cast by Democrats; Senators George and Russell voted for it.

Senator Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana, introduced a resolution for a senate investigation of the cotton industry under price control. The inquiry would be directed particularly to textile price ceilings and "the alleged practice of the textile industry in producing luxury fabrics in preference to work clothes and other low-priced goods."

Freedom a Spiritual Gift, Christian Scientists Say

BOSTON, June 5.—(AP)—The Christian Science board of directors today told the annual meeting of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, that Freedom is essentially a spiritual gift "to be realized only through spiritual understanding and attainment."

Freedom from want and fear, freedom in worship and speech, the directors stated, constituted more than a political slogan or government ideology "for our great way-shower, Christ Jesus, proclaimed centuries ago that freedom accords with God's will and law. He gave simple, clear direction for the attainment of full freedom for the individual and through the individual for all humanity . . ."

Several thousand members from this country and Canada heard the report.

Announcement was made by the directors of the appointment of Paul Stark Seeley, of Cambridge, Mass., as president of the mother church for the ensuing year, succeeding Mrs. Daisette D. S. McKenzie.

On the Air

BY PAUL JONES

Jimmy Durante, the nose that speaks like ax man, threatens to show Ronald Colman the subtler points of acting and give Piano Virtuoso Jose Iturbi a couple of free lessons in boogie-woogie, when he invades the "Everything for the Boys" program at 10:30 p. m. today over WSB.

It's an odds-on bet that the Schnozzola will take over the joint and have Colman sputtering "dese," "dem" and "dose," or wind up with Iturbi converted to the Durante brand of barrel-house before the session is over.

At any rate, dignity will probably be tossed to the winds when the combination of the "Face," the "Fingers" and the "Nose" get together in a three-way deal for the first all-out variety show on the Colman program.

"Death in a Cage," a story about murder under the circus big top, will be presented during "Big Town" at 7 p. m. today over WGST. Steve Wilson, managing editor of the Illustrated Press, and his star reporter, Lorelei Kilbourne, discover that the big top can shelter criminals as well as clowns when a lion tamer is torn to pieces during his act.

"The Doctor Fights," starring Raymond Massey in dramas based on the lives of noted men of medicine, makes its debut over the Columbia Network and WGST at 8:30 p. m. today.

The series will be drawn from the personal lives, experiments and humanitarian contributions of celebrated researchers and practitioners, and will deal frequently with the lives and careers of medics now serving in the armed forces.

Atlanta Exchange Club Will Hear T. C. Allen

Members of the Atlanta Exchange Club have designated Henry M. Powell, retiring president of the Georgia Exchange Club, and G. G. Strandberg, state secretary-treasurer, as honor guests at their luncheon meeting at 12:15 p. m. today in the Robert Fulton hotel.

T. C. Allen, southern district manager, Life magazine, will be the featured speaker.

Polish Leader In Washington

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Stanislaw Mikolajcyk, prime minister of Poland, began his long-desired visit to Washington today amid official hopes that his talks with President Roosevelt might further Anglo-American efforts to restore friendly relations between Poland and Russia.

Russia, like Britain, was advised ahead of time of the visit. Beyond this Moscow did not figure, so far as can be learned.

Whether by intention or accident, Mikolajcyk arrived within two weeks after the arrival in Moscow of members of the underground "National Council of Poland" which Moscow could recognize as a sort of provisional Polish government—though diplomats here discount such a development.

Optimism concerning the talks with Mikolajczyk is notably restrained among official here.

It was learned that the President, Undersecretary of State Stettinius and other officials could be expected to stress this government's hope for a settlement reached by agreement of Russia and Poland but its unwillingness otherwise to initiate boundary settlement discussions in any instance prior to the creation of world security organization.

There are two main problems separating the Russians and the Polish government-in-exile. Most important, perhaps, is Moscow's objection to some members of the Polish government on the ground that they are anti-Soviet. Along with this stands the border dispute in which the Poles and Russians both claim huge areas of land lying along the Russo-Polish border.

Air Ace Awarded DSC For 'Bluff' on Germans

AT A FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, June 5.—(AP)—Lieutenant Henry Brown, of Washington, D. C., Mustang ace credited with 17 kills, was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross today for extraordinary heroism in a recent action in which he destroyed two Nazi planes, and then, with his ammunition spent, flew to aid two fellow pilots beset by four German fighters and boldly bluffed the attackers into retreat.

Brown got one Nazi while strafing a continental airfield, and climbed to kill another in air combat, using up all his ammunition. Then he saw the four enemy planes attacking two American fighters, the citation said, "and with complete disregard for his own safety, at once flew to assist the friendly fighters. His determination and boldness forced the enemy to break off the fight."

Brown's mother, Mrs. Adison Grant, lives in North Arlington, Virginia.

DeGaulle NotToDemand U. S. Part in Conference

ALGIERS, June 5.—(AP)—General De Gaulle abandoned today his efforts to make complete United States participation in the forthcoming London negotiations a condition for his departure.

French officials held that the conference on civil administration and French-Allied relations would be pointless without American concurrence, but a source close to De Gaulle told U. S. and British diplomats that stories that he would leave only if America was adequately represented were baseless.

Lawson Soldier Dies From Head Injuries

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., June 5. (AP)—Flown by Army plane from Lawson General hospital at Atlanta, Ga., so that he might be near home when he died, Corporal James M. Coleman, 38, of Boston, died in Cushing General hospital today from head injuries suffered at Camp Shelby, Miss.

The soldier failed to rally after a delicate brain operation last week and was told by Army doctors that he had only a short time to live. He then asked that he be taken "closer to home" and the request was granted. He reached the hospital last Friday.

Half of City's Dwelling Units Called Sub-Standard by Torras

Forty-nine per cent of the 84,764 dwelling units in Atlanta are substandard and 39.9 of the number have no private baths, according to a survey just completed by Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission.

Torras said the figures are based primarily on the 1940 census. They will be used, he added, in mapping future improvements and will have a bearing on future health and law enforcement programs.

A number of city blocks, mostly those adjacent to industrial areas, are composed almost entirely of substandard structures, he asserted. Substandard dwellings were defined by Torras as those needing major repairs or lacking adequate sanitary facilities. Most of the substandard structures were erected prior to 1920.

Fewer than 10 per cent of the total number of dwellings in Atlanta were constructed between 1930 and 1940, and the construction rate since 1940 has slowed up because of the war and other factors.

Of the total number of dwellings, 20,769 are owner-occupied, and 11,348 of this number, or 57.1 per cent, are mortgaged. About 75 per cent of the dwellings inside the city limits are rental properties.

Man and In-Law Lay Side by Side In Hospital

With a bullet wound in his chest, near the heart, J. B. Moore, 35, of 1061 Center street, N. W., is lying in Grady hospital beside his father-in-law, C. P. Day, 67, of 512 Ninth street, N. W., who has a possible skull fracture.

Moore, Radio Patrolmen J. H. Parham and S. E. Caldwell reported, was shot late yesterday afternoon while in Day's bedroom and, after sustaining the bullet wound, struck his father-in-law over the head with a heavy soft drink bottle.

Mrs. R. N. McCain, of 898 McMillan street, N. W., told the policemen Moore was shot without warning when he walked into Day's bedroom and that there had not been any quarrel between the two men.

At Grady, physicians reported the condition of Moore as critical, while the extent of the injury sustained by Day had not been determined.

A police guard was placed over Day pending completion of a police investigation.

Complete Text of President Roosevelt's Speech

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's speech tonight follows:

Yesterday, June 4, 1944, Rome fell to American and Allied troops. The first of the Axis capitals is now in our hands. One up and two to go!

It is perhaps significant that the first of these capitals to fall should have the longest history of all of them. The story of Rome goes back to the time of the foundations of our civilization.

We can still see there monuments of the time when Rome and Romans controlled the whole of the then known world. That, too, is significant, for the United Nations are determined that in the future no one city and no one race will be able to control the whole of the world.

ROME'S SHRINES

In addition to the monuments of the older times, we also see in Rome the great symbol of Christianity, which has reached into almost every part of the world. There are other shrines, and other churches in many places, but the churches and shrines of Rome are visible symbols of the faith and determination of the early saints and martyrs that Christianity should live and become universal. And now it will be a source of deep satisfaction that the freedom of the Pope and of Vatican City is assured by the armies of the United Nations.

It is also significant that Rome has been liberated by the armed forces of many nations. The American and British armies—who bore the chief burdens of battle—found at their sides our own North American neighbors, the gallant Canadians. The fighting New Zealanders from the far South Pacific, the courageous French and the French Moroccans, the South Africans, the Poles and the East Indians—all of them fought with us on many bloody approaches to Rome.

ITALY AS AN ALLY

The Italians, too, forswearing a partnership in the Axis which they never desired, have sent their troops to join us in our battles against the German trespassers on their soil.

The prospect of the liberation of Rome meant enough to Hitler and his generals to induce them to fight desperately at great cost of men and materials and with great sacrifice to their crumbling eastern line and to their western front. No thanks are due to them if Rome was spared the devastation which the Germans wreaked on Naples and other Italian cities. The Allied generals maneuvered so skillfully that the Nazis could only have stayed long enough to damage Rome at the risk of losing their armies. But Rome is, of course, more than a military objective.

Ever since before the days of the Caesars, Rome has stood as a symbol of authority. Rome was the republic. Rome was the empire. Rome was and is, in a sense, the Catholic church, and Rome was the capital of a united Italy. Later, unfortunately, Rome became the seat of Fascism—one of the three capitals of the Axis.

For a quarter-century the Italian people were enslaved and degraded by the rule of Mussolini from Rome. They will mark its liberation with deep emotion. In the north of Italy, the people are still dominated and threatened by the Nazi overlords and their Fascist puppets. Somehow, in the back of my head is still remembered a name—Mussolini.

Our victory comes at an excellent time, while our Allied forces are poised for another strike at western Europe—and while Armies of other Nazi soldiers nervously await our assault, and our gallant Russian allies continue to make their power felt more and more.

NO GERMAN COLLAPSE

From a strictly military standpoint, we had long ago accomplished certain of the main objectives of our Italian campaign—the control of the sea lanes of the Mediterranean to shorten our combat and supply lines, and the capture of the airports of Foggia from which we have struck blows on the continent.

It would be unwise to inflate in our own minds the military importance of the capture of Rome. We shall have to push through a long period of greater effort and fiercer fighting before we get into Germany itself. The Germans have retreated thousands of miles, all the way from the gates of Cairo, through Libya and Tunisia and Sicily and southern Italy. They have suffered heavy losses, but not great enough yet to cause collapse.

Germany has not yet been driven to surrender. Germany has not yet been driven to the point where she will be unable to recommence world conquest a generation hence.

Therefore the victory still lies some distance ahead. That distance will be covered in due time—have no fear of that. But it will be tough and it will be costly.

In Italy the people had lived so long under the corrupt rule of Mussolini that, in spite of the tinsel at the top, their economic condition had grown steadily worse. Our troops have found starvation, malnutrition, disease, a deteriorating education and lowered public health—all byproducts of the Fascist misrule.

The task of the Allies in occupation has been stupendous. We have had to start at the very bottom, assisting local governments to reform on democratic lines. We have had to give them bread to replace that which was stolen out of their mouths by the Germans. We have had to make it possible for the Italians to raise and use their own local crops. We have to help them cleanse their schools of Fascist trappings.

The American people as a whole approve the salvage of these human beings, who are only now learning to walk in a new atmosphere of freedom.

Some of us may let our thoughts run to the financial cost of it. Essentially it is what we can call a form of relief. At the same time we hope that this relief will be an investment for the future—an investment that will pay dividends by eliminating Fascism and ending any Italian desires to start another war of aggression in the future. They are dividends which justify such an investment, because they are additional supports for world peace.

ITALIANS' VIRTUES

The Italian people are capable of self-government. We do not lose sight of their virtues as a peace-loving nation.

We remember the many centuries in which the Italians were leaders in the arts and sciences, enriching the lives of all mankind.

We remember the great sons of the Italian people—Galileo and Marconi, Michelangelo and Dante—and that fearless discoverer who typifies the courage of Italy—Christopher Columbus.

Italy cannot grow in stature by seeking to build up a great militaristic empire. Italians have been overcrowded within their own territories, but they do not need to try to conquer the lands of other peoples in order to find the breath of life. Other peoples may not want to be conquered.

In the past Italians have come by the millions to the United States. They have been welcomed, they have prospered, they have become good citizens, community and governmental leaders. They are not Italian-Americans. They are Americans — Americans of Italian descent.

Italians have gone in great numbers to the other Americas—Brazil and the Argentine, for example—and to many other nations in every continent of the world, giving of their industry and their talents, and achieving success and the comfort of good living.

Italy should go on as a great mother nation, contributing to the culture and progress and good will of all mankind—and developing her special talents in the arts, crafts and sciences, and preserving her historic and cultural heritage for the benefit of all peoples.

We want and expect the help of the future Italy toward lasting peace. All the other nations opposed to Fascism and Nazism should help give Italy a chance.

The Germans, after years of domination in Rome, left the people in the Eternal City on the verge of starvation. We and the British will do everything we can to bring them relief. Anticipating the fall of Rome, we made preparations to ship food supplies to the city, but it should be borne in mind that the needs are so great and the transportation requirements of our armies so heavy that improvement must be gradual. We have already begun to save the lives of the men, women and children of Rome.

U. S. EFFICIENCY

This is an example of the efficiency of our machinery of war. The magnificent ability and energy of the American people is growing the crops, building the merchant ships, making and collecting the cargoes, getting the supplies over thousands of miles of water and thinking ahead to meet emergencies—all this spells, I think, an amazing efficiency on the part of our armed forces, all the various agencies working with them and American industry and labor as a whole.

No great effort like this can be a hundred per cent perfect, but the batting average is very, very high.

I extend the congratulations and thanks of the American people to General Alexander, who has been in command of the whole Italian operation; to General Clark and General Leese, of the Fifth and the Eighth Armies; to General Wilson, the supreme Allied commander of the Mediterranean theater, and General Devers, his American deputy; to General Eaker, to Admirals Cunningham and Hewitt, and to all their brave officers and men.

May God bless them and watch over them and over all of our gallant, fighting men.

FDR Warns On Exaggeration Of Rome's Military Importance

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Highlights of President Roosevelt's speech on the fall of Rome:

Our victory comes at an excellent time, while our Allied forces are poised for another strike at western Europe—and while armies of other Nazi soldiers nervously await our assault.

It would be unwise to inflate in our own minds the military importance of the capture of Rome. . . . The victory still lies some distance ahead.

The United Nations are determined that in the future no one city and no one race will be able to control the whole of the world.

No thanks are due to them (Hitler and his generals) if Rome was spared the devastation which the Germans wreaked on Naples and other Italian cities.

We want and expect the help of the future Italy toward lasting peace. All the other nations opposed to Fascism and Nazism should help give Italy a chance.

'Costly' Victory Path Ahead

have retreated thousands of miles, all the way from the gates of Cairo, through Libya and Tunisia and Sicily and southern Italy.

"They have suffered heavy losses, but not great enough yet to cause collapse."

In Italy, the President said, the people had lived so long "under the corrupt rule of Mussolini that, in spite of the tinsel at the top, their economic condition had grown steadily worse. Our troops have found starvation, malnutrition, disease, a deteriorating education and lowered public health—all byproducts of the Fascist misrule.

Mr. Roosevelt said the American people approve "the salvage of these human beings who are only now learning to walk in a new atmosphere of freedom."

Some people," he said, may think of the financial cost of liberating Italy but he termed it a "form of relief."

"We hope," he added, "that this relief will be an investment for the future—an investment that will pay dividends by eliminating Fascism and ending any Italian desires to start another war of aggression."

It was the President's first major radio speech for months. In it, he paid tribute to all the Allied troops who participated in the Italian campaign.

"I extend the congratulations and thanks of the American people," he said, "to General Alexander, who has been in command of the whole Italian operation; to General Clark and General Leese, of the Fifth and the Eighth Armies; to General Wilson, the supreme Allied commander of the Mediterranean theater, and General Devers, his American deputy; to General Eaker; to Admirals Cunningham and Hewitt; and to all their brave officers and men."

The President harked back over Rome's rich history and termed the city "the great symbol of Christianity."

"And now it will be a source of deep satisfaction that the freedom of the Pope and of Vatican City is assured by the armies of the United Nations," he said.

Mr. Roosevelt said the prospect of Rome's liberation meant enough to Hitler and his generals to force them to fight desperately against the oncoming Allies.

"No thanks are due to them," he said, "if Rome was spared the devastation which the Germans wreaked on Naples and other Italian cities. The Allied generals maneuvered so skillfully that the Nazis could only have stayed long enough to damage Rome at the risk of losing their armies."

"One Up and Two To Go"

President Roosevelt's speech of last night will hardly go down in history with some of his more significant documents but it undoubtedly served its two major purposes: (1) The recapitulating of the assets and liabilities which accrue to the Allies by virtue of the taking of Rome and (2) The reassuring of the people of Italy of our plans for that nation's independent future.

"The Italian people are capable of self-government," he said on this latter count, reviewing at some length the contributions which sons of Italy have made through the ages to the development of civilization.

"Italy should go on," he added. "We want and expect the help of the future Italy toward lasting peace. All other nations opposed to Fascism and Nazism should help give Italy a chance."

The befuddled Italians, who have increasingly felt the tyranny of their one-time German partners, must know by now that the Allies come not as conquerors but as liberators. But it cannot be too frequently emphasized that we are freeing their native soil, at a terrible toll of men and material, with the determination that never again will totalitarianism be given a free hand to set forth once more on the bloody road of conquest.

It is significant, as the President pointed out "that Rome has been liberated by the armed forces of many nations. The American and British armies—who bore the chief burden of battle—found at their sides our own North American neighbors, the gallant Canadians. The fighting New Zealanders from the far South Pacific, the courageous French and the French Moroccans, the South Africans, the Poles and the East Indians—all of them fought with us on the bloody approaches to Rome."

Many men, of many races and many creeds, have a stake in Italy's future. The eyes of those who survive will be on Italian developments. And those who laid down their lives to free Italy will not rest easily if that freedom is not appreciated and preserved.

For the home front, there was, first of all, a note of caution, a warning against overoptimism.

"It would be unwise," said the President, "to inflate in our own minds the military importance of the capture of Rome. We shall have to push through a long period of greater effort and fiercer fighting before we get into Germany itself. The Germans have retreated thousands of miles, all the way from the gates of Cairo, through Libya and Tunisia and Sicily and southern Italy. They have suffered heavy losses, but not great enough yet to cause collapse. Germany has not yet been driven to surrender. Germany has not yet been driven to the point where she will be unable to recommence world conquest a generation hence. Therefore, the victory still lies some distance ahead. That distance will be covered in due time—have no fear of that. But it will be tough and it will be costly."

And there was, finally, well-merited praise for the brilliant tacticians and leaders and the gallant officers and men who effected the Eternal City's deliverance.

It is, of course, only through the continued sacrifices of these, our fighting men, that we shall be able to improve the score which President Roosevelt has put as "one up and two to go." For whatever the circumstances on the home front, whatever the cost to civilian production, our sacrifice is naught compared to that of those who undergo the hazards and hardships of combat.

It is for the sake of these men—and their counterparts of the next generation—that we must insist against the mistakes of 1918.

As they go on to physical victory, we must carefully lay our plans so that, under no circumstances, can the forces of oppression and aggression again take the march in another 20 or 25 years.

Ernest Woodruff

Ernest Woodruff was the last of the real builders of Atlanta.

When he died on yesterday there passed the last of the relatively small group of business and industrial leaders from whose thinking and planning stemmed the development of Atlanta into a metropolitan community of a spirit and scope unparalleled south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Ernest Woodruff came to Atlanta as a young man. He devoted the rest of his long and active life to promoting the city's progress and growth. It would be well-nigh impossible to trace the many industrial developments in which his creative genius found expression. Atlanta's street railway system, the Trust Company of Georgia, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company, the Continental Gin Company, and the Atlantic Steel Company are but a few thriving monuments to his foresight and ability. And it was, of course, under his capable direction that Coca-Cola has become well known 'round the world.

Yes, Ernest Woodruff was immensely successful. And to him goes much of the credit for Atlanta's recognized position as the industrial capital of the south.

But Ernest Woodruff was not alone an industrial wizard. He took a deep and abiding interest in educational and cultural matters. And he leaves, in passing, the Emily and Ernest Woodruff Foundation, dedicated to the educational, medical and religious development of the south. The Foundation, set up in 1938 and augmented several times since, now becomes the largest such philanthropic undertaking in the south.

Ernest Woodruff, in short, lived a successful life, one extremely useful from the standpoint of public service. There are manifold reminders of his contributions to the development of Atlanta and the progress of the south. It is reassuring that the progressive spirit which he personified permeates the thinking of those who today are striving to make of his beloved Atlanta an even greater metropolis.

Wheeler Bill

Editor, Constitution: One of the boldest attempts to muzzle free speech, I believe, is the proposal by Senator Johnson, of Colorado, to compel radio commentators with commercial sponsors to secure licenses from the Communications Commission before they can broadcast.

I suppose the next move will be to have editors and other political writers submit their material to a politically appointed commission before it can be published.

Certain politicians in this country, in an attempt to perpetuate themselves in office, and power, are willing to go into any extreme to prevent the people from learning the truth.

As for Mr. Wheeler, my opinion of him is worse, if anything, than it was in 1940 when he opposed the selective service bill. At that time I told him his radio speech against the above mentioned bill was close to treason, particularly coming from so prominent a public servant as himself. I pointed out to him we had lost many men needlessly in other wars, because of inadequate training, and those responsible were men like him, who refused to appropriate money for training men to fight, and protect themselves, their people and their country.

Surely the American people do not need another bureau to tell them what they should or should not hear over the radio.

The Round-Up

Editor, Constitution: Mr. J. Edgar Hoover and his Bureau of Investigation have done a remarkable job, especially so since the attack on Pearl Harbor, so let us all co-operate with our government now and insist that all people who have been, and who are now, connected with un-American activities be rounded up and branded as just what they are. With enough concrete evidence, let them be lined up against the wall and shot down with great pleasure. Either deport those left or put them out of circulation. In my opinion, this should apply to most draft evaders. If this country is not worth their fighting for, then it is not worth sheltering such rats.

After this war, if we do not take precaution and tie down the trouble makers, they will drench this world in blood again. That's what happened after World War I. Take Hitler, his Axis partners and all his henchmen and dispatch them quickly to their final destination. If we can win the peace, then our children and our grandchildren will not have to fight again, so let not this sacrifice be in vain.

When all is over over there, if war should ever come again, it will be over here that our enemies will deli er it to our doorstep in the form of super-blockbusters. Nothing would suit Japan so well in later years. It would enable them to regain face which they are losing so much of at this time.

We can see the termination of this war and when the dawn comes, Old Glory will be more colorful. The stars will be brighter and the stripes will be redder after such a blood bath. This world will be a better place in which to live if we win the conference. So let us rally around the grand old flag and win the conference and round up the dirty rats.

Graves

Editor, Constitution: A letter from Mr. John Temple Graves, of the Birmingham Age-Herald, which I received today, says that his father John Temple Graves, was not, at the time of the Atlanta riot of 1906, connected with any publication sometimes taxed with contributing to the excitement then unloosed. An article of mine done for the Dictionary of American Biography around 1927 may be interpreted to mean that he was, at that time, so connected. He was not.

I should appreciate your publishing this letter in your paper.

Editor Constitution: I like to take this opportunity of saying a few words in your valuable column: It is a known fact now that men over 38 are not now being drafted into the armed forces. The Barriers Are Great But the Tide Is Strong

So, they ran out with flowers and kisses for our dusty, tired troops when they entered Rome—

Well, I am glad. But that is a habit, an old habit, with the Romans. Shakespeare sets the tone of his play Julius Caesar on that note, as Marullus berates the commoners:

"Knew you not Pompey? Many a time and oft
Have you climbed up to the walls and battlements,
To towers and windows, yea, to chimney tops,
Your infants in your arms, and there have sat
The live-long day with patient expectation
To see great Pompey pass the streets of Rome . . .
And do you now put on your best attire?
And do you now cull out a holiday?
And do you now strew flowers in his way
That comes in triumph over Pompey's blood?"

Many and many a conqueror has gone into Rome. So many have gone in, indeed, that it is with some difficulty the ancient glory of the name stands up.

Many conquering armies, many bad governments, many years of exploitation by weak kings and cabinets have sapped the strength of the people.

For a time Benito Mussolini tried to bring it back. He had built, in black marble, a relief map which showed the vast stretch of the ancient Roman empire.

He talked loudly; he blew the bugles and ruffled the drums; he rattled sabers and went off to conquer the diseased, unarmed Ethiopians, delighting in the bombing and the glory of an easy war.

But his dream was as empty and as bombastic as he.

His Fascist government was corrupt. It built roads, bridges, drained swamps, made the railroads run on time, but it was rotten and evil.

THE OLD STRENGTH There was a time when Rome was great. There was never a greater army, measured against its period, than the Legions of Caesar.

The short, dark, hairy Roman, muscled and disciplined, making long marches on parched corn, oil and wine, made his short, heavy sword one of the most feared weapons the world ever knew.

He went to most of the known world and he made Roman law and Roman citizenship something strong and great.

There was fighting in Rome four centuries before Christ. War, red war, was part of her history—three wars with Carthage; wars with Macedonia, with Greece, the conquering and occupation of Britain—great names of soldiers and emperors.

They were 300 years in England—were the Legions. You may dig up their coins and weapons yet; may see their old walls and baths . . . she is old, is Rome.

Kingdom, with seven kings; republic for almost 500 years; empire from 31 B. C. across a span of five more centuries.

The empire was young, but the city was almost 2,000 years old when a Baby was born at Bethlehem. This Baby was to exert a great influence on Rome and all the world.

Tiberius was Emperor then. He ruled during all the brief life of Christ.

Nero came. From the time of Nero to Diolectian they tried to crush out this new religion. It was, they said, too radical. It struck at property rights. It undermined the Roman state, they said.

Paul was a prisoner in Rome. The Christian martyrs died there, torn by lions, dragged behind chariots, slaves in the mills, in the galleys, in the mines.

For 476 years after the birth of the Baby at Bethlehem the empire lived on. But it was dying, dying, dying.

Since then none has breathed life into it.

Mussolini tried. He had lots of breath. And he failed.

THE MORAL IS It seems to me the moral of all history is that since the birth of the Baby at Bethlehem a strong tide has been setting in the direction of the rights of men.

It is a strong tide. But it has much to overcome.

The Old Man With the Hour Glass knows. He saw Hannibal cross the Alps; he saw Caesar crowned; he saw the Legions, 300 years in Britain, called home at last to try and bolster the dying empire; he saw Napoleon; he watched them all as he watches Hitler and the Japanese war lords today. He saw Mussolini go, the stuffed Caesar, loud and vulgar.

Now he has seen new feet tread the old ways of Rome.

Descendants of Britain and of the many lands once ruled by the empire centuries ago have come to Rome. Good GI shoe leather treads the streets. Tanks rumble toward the Piedmont hills and look toward the Alps.

The tide is strong.

Prospect of Utopia When the War Is Done

If reports on the new insecticide which has been used by American Army authorities in Italy prove only partially correct, we may hope for a manner of life, after the war, practically devoid of all the little insect pests which have worried and handicapped mankind throughout history.

They call this stuff DDT. According to an AP story, it was a discovery of a young German, back in 1874, but authorities in Naziland seem to have overlooked its possibilities. So, continues the report, a Swiss chemist developed it when war in 1939 stopped the supply of other insecticides.

The big story involving DDT to date is the story of the fight against typhus in Naples, after that Italian city was occupied by the American Fifth Army last year. A fearful epidemic of typhus appeared to be well started in the civilian population. But our Army sanitation forces subjected the whole population to DDT treatment for the killing of lice and the typhus was stopped, cold.

NO FLIES, NOR FLEAS So effective is DDT in killing flies, it is said, that a one-time spraying of the walls of a house will keep it free of flies for three months. On dogs and cats the powder kills all fleas and, moreover, sterilizes the animals to fleas or lice for a long, long time.

Of course, no housekeeper will admit the presence of bedbugs in her beds. But, just as a safeguard, if a bed is sprayed, just once, there will be no bedbugs for 300 days or more.

There are lots of other insects for which DDT is deadly. And it is quite harmless to humans and domestic animals.

Furthermore, there are many of the insects which do so much damage to the crops which will be wiped out by DDT, they say.

But, of course, the south doesn't get the proper sort of break, even in this instance. For, among the insect pests which seem to be practically immune to the stuff, is the cotton boll weevil. But the peach moth, the codling moth, cabbage worms Japanese beetles and a whole list of other crop enemies, can be killed off quite easily by DDT.

There appears to be only one catch. The usual one and the one about which we can't complain. That is, the entire output of four concerns now manufacturing DDT is needed by, and goes to, the Army. Civilians will just have to wait until after the war to get the stuff.

But we can, at least, think about the delightful sort of life we can live after the war is done, when we can get some DDT and casually, sort of, spray it around our premises.

No more flies. No fleas on the dog or the cat. No bedbugs. No lots of other kinds of pesky little things that fly or crawl or hop.

I wonder how it works on ants and water beetles? Can termites continue their wood-eating devastation? How about wasps and hornets?

MENACE REMOVED There is one scare-story that appears in the impossible science magazines or horror publications regularly which will be out of date after DDT becomes in general use. That is the story of our world overwhelmed by insects which eliminate the animal world and take over. DDT will take care of that.

But, with all the delightful immunity from insect pests that DDT promises, I am wondering what unexpected result will follow its general use?

Personally, I have never seen any reason for the common house fly. We know it is disease carrier, it is insanitary and a nuisance. But experience teaches us that, even though we don't, sometimes, know what it is, there is a use for 'most everything on this earth. If we eliminate the genius house fly, perhaps something worse, or at least as bad, which the flies have kept away from us will come to take their place.

Didn't they introduce rabbits in Australia to combat some sort of pest and didn't the rabbits become a worse and more costly pest than the original?

They tell us that worms and ants and other insects that bore into the ground are necessary to loosen the earth and thus make it fertile. Perhaps if we destroyed all of them we should pay more heavily in the end.

Well, it will be interesting, after the war, to discover if DDT is the miraculous thing they say it is. And, if it does put an end to many insects, what pest will come along to take their place?

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Facing Trial

NEW YORK, June 5.—Thomas De Lorenzo, born Harry Posner, and known at his mysterious convenience by several other names, will go to trial in the federal court in New York tomorrow or Wednesday on an indictment charging false swearing on two occasions in his dealings with the government both as a war plant worker and as an official of Local 365 of the United Auto Workers of the CIO. He is a liar on his oath by his own admission before a congressional committee which investigated production failure in the Brewster plants manufacturing fighter planes for the Navy and he said last year that if it were a question of sacrificing the lives of American naval fighter men or advancing the interests of his union he would let the fighters die.

This is the union whose members last week staged a false strike, a sit-in demonstration with emotional banners, at the Brewster plants, demanding that the Navy or some other department award further contracts to Brewster to prolong their jobs. They include many of the people who stalled, loafed and otherwise, deliberately and by organized system, sabotaged airplane production so outrageously that, at last, following the denunciation of De Lorenzo in Washington, Henry Kaiser was asked to take charge of the company and try to get results.

Re-elected

Kaiser, understandably, despised De Lorenzo, but had to put up with him and did his best. Many of the same persons, calling themselves workers and American labor, who last week proclaimed their patriotic desire to produce planes now that the urgent need is past, refused to produce or produced as few as they could and at the highest possible cost in time and the taxpayers' money when the need was tragic in far parts of the world. This union re-elected De Lorenzo president, even after the public revelation of the imposter's character, thus giving a vote of confidence to a brazen, lying sneak and repudiating every American fighting man in the war.

With some individual exceptions, including employes who, in the Washington hearings, were said to have been ashamed to face their neighbors with sons in the service, they were, in spirit, no better than the shifty, selfish liquor peddler who saw the draft coming and moved into the union racket for safety, falsifying every document that citizens must fill out and sign.

In all the loud publicity which attended the sit-in strike in Long Island City and Johnsville, Pa., last week, the name of De Lorenzo was almost entirely suppressed lest the public be reminded that this was the union with the most disgraceful record of cold-blooded and selfish betrayal of the fighters in the whole sorry story of unionism in the war. Instead, to take the heat off and divert attention from the union's past, Richard T. Frankensteen, vice president of the national organization, moved prominently into the scene to conduct the negotiations in Washington which now, apparently, will result in some appeasement of the slackers at the expense of further orders to Brewster.

Bad Throughout

Brewster has been a shockingly bad company throughout, but the fact remains, as brought out in the congressional inquiry, that De Lorenzo had been given a union contract by the War Labor Board under which no company could have operated efficiently without the good will and sincere co-operation which this adventurer never was willing to give. He could dictate to draft boards which men were to be deferred or exempted, and inviting temptation to draft workers who didn't want to go, he could certify that he, himself, was indispensable. And he could tell the Navy representatives to go to hell when they tried to wheedle production out of him, and did.

Much somber editorial comment has assumed that this was a straight case of labor liquidation, causing sudden mass unemployment, and a warning of other and worse mass firings and layoffs to come. It was nothing of the kind. It was a special case in which the Navy Department had a justified patriotic grudge to settle with thousands of contemptible slackers with no claim on the respect, sympathy or other consideration of their recent fellow citizens. The Navy, handcuffed by President Roosevelt's political patronage over unions, however bad, had tried every way possible to induce De Lorenzo to do the decent thing. Finally in desperation the Navy was forced to the humiliating expedient of appealing secretly to newspaper reporters to make the expose and direct public opinion against the saboteurs.

De Lorenzo is charged specifically with concealing his police record in an affidavit to which he swore in obtaining a place on a labor panel of the WLB and with swearing falsely that he had previous experience in airplane construction in applying for his first factory job, where he would be out of the draft.

The maximum penalty is 10 years. But his fellow patriots in the union have been making propaganda that his police record was really trivial, although it included charges of riotous picketing and malicious mischief in obstructing work at another airplane plant during a wartime strike.

Senator Soaper:

The retort to crush Novelist Bromfield's prediction of famine in '44 is the WPB's announcement that 105 million knives, forks and spoons will be manufactured this year.

New photos of the sun reveal that body as "a seething mass of flaming hurricanes and gigantic explosions." Don't tell us they have political conventions there, too.

The Gas Attack In Brooklyn

I am glad to report that it now appears there will be no casualties among the thousand or so citizens of Brooklyn who were temporarily incapacitated last week when a 220-pound tank of chlorine gas fell off a delivery truck and broke in the gutter.

The truth of the matter, I must admit, is that I have not worried a great deal about their recovery because it is a matter of general public knowledge that residents of Flatbush are, of necessity, very hardy citizens, indeed.

I do not know whether this is because of something in the Brooklyn water or merely because the weak and the meek soon realize the advisability of moving to a less rugged terrain.

At any rate, I am glad to know there will be no permanent casualties resulting from the Brooklyn gas episode and that it has been satisfactorily explained. I was afraid for a while that, not knowing whence the mysterious gas had come, outraged Brooklynites might resort to mob tactics and wreak vengeance in kind on those they had reason to think responsible for the outrage.

They would know, of course, that the Nazis and Japs had thus far abided by the rules of international warfare which prohibit use of poison gases. Thus Brooklyn's wrath would inevitably fall on their longer-standing enemy, the Giant fans.

Incidentally, having gotten a whiff of chlorine once or twice, I have spent long hours pondering how so many people could come in contact therewith and not immediately depart for other areas. I have come to the conclusion, after much consideration, that the gasees may be roughly divided into two categories:

(1) Those who were on the subway when the gas seeped down over the tracks and, noticing a peculiar odor, thought one of the ventilators was actually working and that the strange new smell was fresh air; and

(2) Those who thought the Dodgers were just having another bad afternoon at Ebbets Field.

Electoral College Abolition Needed?

WASHINGTON.—Texas Democrats are offering an invitation to political chaos by threatening to name a slate of presidential electors who will not be bound by the results of the November elections unless the party national convention at its forthcoming Chicago meeting adopts a plank in the platform condemning efforts of congress to pass legislation regulating state election laws.

Somewhat similarly South Carolina Democrats have offered vague threats of the same thing, at least to the extent of calling a second state convention after the national convention meets to decide on the slate of electors.

Both movements are obviously aimed at preventing a fourth-term nomination for Mr. Roosevelt. One stems from the die-hard opposition to the President of Senator Cotton Ed Smith, of South Carolina, while the other finds its origin in the anti-New Deal attitude of Senator "Pass-the-Biscuits-Pappy" O'Daniel, of Texas, as fine a pair of political mountebanks as any party can boast of.

All of the fuss about congressional noninterference with the poll tax and other state election laws is pure window dressing to conceal the real object of the campaign, which is directed solely at the fouth term.

Unable to defeat the President's renomination by fair means, the Smith-O'Daniel malcontents have hit upon a scheme for depriving him of the electoral votes of their states by foul methods.

What they would do is to have slates of presidential electors named in their states who would not be guided by the decision of the majority of the voters in the November election, but who would be left free to vote for any candidate of their choice.

NO SLIGHTEST CHANCE There isn't the slightest chance, of course, that either Texas or South Carolina will cast their vote against Mr. Roosevelt, in the event he is a fourth-term candidate. It would be nothing but sheer fraud, therefore, for a state convention or other party agency to try to manipulate the situation in a way to deprive the President of the electoral votes of the two commonwealths.

Under the antiquated system remaining in the constitution, Presidents of the United States are elected not by the direct vote of the people, but by a group of electors chosen in the general election. Each state is allotted electors corresponding in number to its representation in congress, one for each senator and congressman.

Georgia, for example, which has a delegation of 12 representatives in congress, is entitled to 12 electors. Each party is entitled to put up a set of such electors and the slate elected in the general election is supposed to cast its ballot for President in accordance with the way the state goes. The system as a whole is referred as to the American electoral college.

In the event no candidate for President gets a majority of the electoral college the choice of a chief executive is referred to congress for decision.

CHAOS AND DISSENSION It is possible to conceive of a situation growing out of a close election, such as that of 1916, which was decided by the California vote, whereby Texas or South Carolina, in denying the accredited Democratic ticket their electoral votes, might throw the election of President and Vice President into congress.

Political chaos might easily result from such a development at a time like this.

Moreover, suppose a majority of the other states should follow the threatened example of Texas and South Carolina. The November election in that case might be meaningless. By circumventing the law in this respect it is even possible for the electoral college to elect a President who was not even a candidate in the election, a man whom the people had not passed on.

Nothing could be more designed to create chaos and dissension.

The mere threat of the action initiated in the two southern states should be enough, it seems, to give rise to a movement for eliminating the electoral college. In many respects, it appears to be an unnecessary appendage to our political system which is capable of doing great harm. The proper substitute, it would seem, would be to place the election of our Presidents directly in the hands of the people.

As it is, the people are supposed to decide by majority vote, but actually the machinery is at hand for a group of manipulators to divert the system in a way to defeat the will of the people.

Mr. Whitten Showed the Yankees

One day in 1902 when the old M. & B. train pulled out of Macon, there was not a single passenger in the fine parlor car. Mr. Waller, the conductor, sat down to make out his reports and he thought it a shame that nobody was enjoying the panorama of fields of hills that flashed by. Then he recalled that in one of the day coaches there were a bride and groom who had come from Jackson, Ga., and were on their way to Thomaston—this was their honeymoon trip. So he invited young Mr. and Mrs. N. Lawson Whitten to sit in the parlor car, and they did.

Mr. Whitten was a loom-fixer, employed at the new Thomaston cotton mills and making nine dollars a week, pretty good wages for someone who had started out at 15 cents a day—that was when he was seven.

A year ago Mr. Whitten retired as superintendent of that same mill and bought a farm overlooking a line of lovely green hills near Crest in Upson county.

An Horatio Alger story? Not exactly. There is a rather important difference: Mr. Whitten was not interested primarily in success or in making money; he loved machinery and he believed in textiles. The success was incidental; the faith in textiles remains. Now at 66 he is still quite erect, tall, and his Anglo-Saxon features are regular, well-cut.

IN 1902

But let's go back for a moment to 1902. The Thomaston cotton mill had been in operation for only two years; it wasn't always easy to get up enough money to meet the pay rolls, and the stockholders were a bit uneasy because they had not received a single dividend. The mill made only one product, 4.50-yard sheeting, but that was quite an improvement on the coarse osnaburg made down at Waynmanville in the southern part of the county. The Waynmanville factory had 12 looms; the building was not so large as an average barn, and the rafters were mortised and pinned together with wooden pegs. On a steep hill above the factory was the mill village, and the workers hated so much to climb that hill that they had their lunches brought to them by the children. A farm bell called them to work in the mornings. The pay rate was low and brass checks were used for money; 10, 25 and 50-cent pieces which were accepted in town because they were backed by the mill.

SCORNED BY YANKEES

The osnaburg was hauled in wagons to Barnesville or Thomaston and shipped north, as was the sheeting from Thomaston cotton mill. And what did the Yankees think of it? Well, the rival manufacturers gloated. They said that the south would never be able to produce fine yarn, no southern mill would ever give them any competition!

"We showed them," Mr. Whitten says proudly, "we proved that we could not only produce yarn and cloth as fine as theirs, but we could do it more cheaply. Southern textile workers are the best in the world, quick to learn, deft with their hands and easily disciplined. They make good shipyard workers, they are making very good records in the war as mechanics, air men, anything that requires skill."

"And cotton mill work never hurt anybody," he declared, "though I'm glad we have child-labor laws now. Overseers never did like to employ them, but when they refused, the children's parents would move to another mill where the entire family could be employed." There was a cool breeze blowing from the hills across his pleasant front porch on this bright Sunday morning; rippling out of sight were mellow fields of grain and he sat thinking of the long years he had spent with machines. "I was seven years old when I began working on Saturdays, making bands for spinning at a mill in Langdale, Ala., and I made 15 cents a day. The next year during an epidemic of la grippe I helped my sister thread shuttles on looms. The overseer, an old Scotsman, was so pleased that he begged me to stay on; he put me in charge of four looms and paid me 75 cents a day. That was quite a raise!"

But Lawson Whitten believed in education, too, and he returned to school. Later in Dalton, Ga., he enrolled as a student for one of the first courses offered by The International Correspondence School: The Theory of Textile Designing. In Atlanta he went to night school, studying mathematics at Mr. John M. Slaton's school for under-privileged boys.

DUCK CLOTH

When he had been in Thomaston six months he was promoted to overseer, and it was at his insistence, he says, that this mill began making "duck" cloth—and a profit. Several times since then the capacity of the mill has been doubled and tripled and its products are now nationally known. Its president, Mr. Harrison Hightower, son of the original founder, has recently been elected president of the National Association of Textile Manufacturers.

In 1926 Mr. Whitten was made assistant superintendent and in 1931 general superintendent. But the only "yarns" he spins now are verbal ones, about the old days; and his hands are not so steady as they used to be. Yet his gray eyes are bright when he talks about his work. "Our people are the best paid industrial workers in the world, they get 58 percent of every dollar made. The United States' average is 36 percent, and I doubt if the workers in the automobile industry get more than five."

He looks out over the loom of blue hills, and smiles. The southern cotton mills are doing all right.

Hears a Couple Of Stories From Jimmy Doolittle

LONDON, June—(By Wireless) Here I've been gallivantin' around with lieutenant generals again. If this keeps up I'm going to lose my amateur standing. This time it is Jimmy Doolittle, who is still the same magnificent guy with three stars on his shoulder that he used to be with a captain's bars.

General Doolittle runs the American Eighth Air Force. It is a grim and stupendous job, but he manages to keep the famous Doolittle sense of humor about it.

Doolittle, as you know, is rather short and getting almost bald. Since arriving in England from Italy he has diabolically started a couple of false rumors circulating about himself.

One is that his nickname used to be "Curley," and he occasionally throws his head back as though tossing hair out of his eyes. His other claim is that he used to be 6 feet tall but has worried himself down to his present small height in the past five months.

Jimmy Doolittle has more gifts than any one man has a right to be blessed with. He has been one of America's greatest pilots for more than 25 years. He is bold and completely fearless. Along with that he has a great technical mind and a highly perfected education in engineering.

GREAT STORY TELLER

In addition to his professional skill he is one of the most engaging humans you ever ran across. His voice is clear and keen, he talks with animation, and his tone carries a sense of quick and right decision.

He is one of the greatest story-tellers. He is the only man I've ever known who can tell stories all evening long and never tell one you've heard before. He can tell them in any dialect, from Swedish to Chinese.

Above all he loves to tell stories on himself. Here is an example:

The other day he had his plane set up for a flight to northern England. The weather turned awful, and one of his crew suggested that they cancel the trip. As Jimmie said, he would probably have cancelled it himself, but when the junior officer suggested it he sort of had to go ahead and go.

They were hanging around the operations room, getting the latest reports. The crew thought General Doolittle had left the room. The junior officers were talking about the dangers of making the trip in such weather. They didn't think the general ought to take the chance. And then he overheard one of them say:

"I don't think the b— gives a damn about the weather."

The poor officer almost died when he discovered that the general had heard him.

Other passengers said that throughout the flight this benighted fellow just sat staring at the floor and now and then shaking his head like a condemned man.

The general thinks it was wonderful. No, he didn't do anything about it, for he was flattered by the compliment.

"But only one thing saved him," Doolittle says. "If he had used the word "old" in front of b— I would've had him hung."

ANOTHER STORY

He tells another one. He was at a Flying Fortress base one afternoon when the planes were coming back in. Many of them had been pretty badly shot up and had wounded men aboard.

The general walked up to one plane from which the crew had just got out. The upper part of the tail gun turret was shot away. General Doolittle said to the tail-gunner:

"Were you in there when it happened?"

The gunner, a little peevishly, replied:

"Yes sir."

As the general walked away the annoyed gunner turned to a fellow crewman and said in a loud voice:

"Where in the hell did he think I was, out buying a ham sandwich?"

A frightened junior officer, fearing the general might have overheard, said:

"My God, man, don't you know who that was?"

"Sure I know," the tail-gunner snapped, "and I don't give a damn. That was a stupid question."

With which Jimmy Doolittle, the least stupid of people, fully agrees when he tells the story.

AND ANOTHER

Another time the general went with his chief, Lieutenant General Spaatz, to visit a bomber station which had been having very bad luck and heavy losses. They thought maybe their presence would pick the boys up a bit. So they visited around awhile. And when they got ready to leave a veteran Fortress pilot walked up to them.

"I know why you're out here," he said. "You think our morale is shot because we've been taking it on the nose. Well, I can tell you our morale is all right. There is only one thing that hurts our morale, and that's having three-star generals coming around to see what's the matter with it."

Jimmy tells these stories wonderfully, with more zest and humor than I can put into them second-handed. As he says, the heartbreaks and tragedies of war sometimes push all your gaiety down into the depths. But if a man can keep a sense of the ridiculous about himself he is all right. Jimmy Doolittle can.

More of this tomorrow.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

Worried Labor Leaders Not On the Right Track

There have been three interesting and symptomatic actions in the field of labor during the past few days.

First, the warning of R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), to the members of his own union that if wild-cat wartime strikes continued the whole trade union movement might be crushed when the war was over.

Second, the suggestion of Harry Bridges, extreme left-winger of the CIO, and president of the International Longshoreman's Union, that "in return for guarantees of basic union security" the strike weapon be abandoned even after the cessation of hostilities and the return to a normal peace economy.

And, third, the sit-in strike in the Brewster plant.

These three events are revelatory of what is going on in the minds of the leadership of American labor. They all indicate the fear that labor has of the post-war period. But they are three different fears, expressed by three different attitudes.

SOLDIER REACTION

Mr. Thomas is afraid of a split between soldiers and civilians after the war. He knows that for a man in a foxhole, a strike at home for whatever justification cannot be explained. He apprehends that returning and jobless soldiers, if convinced that they have been in any way let down by the workers at home, may be used by the enemies of labor to break union ranks. Long before Mr. Thomas issued the warning it was made by high officials of the armed forces.

Mr. Bridges goes farther. The soldiers coming back will be unorganized. So, if there is a strike situation after the war, these soldiers can be played against the unions, and Bridges is concerned with the maintenance of the union structure, and therefore seeks a working agreement with management, so that management will not play this labor reserve against the employed workers.

The Bridges proposal has met vehement opposition from all the leading labor leaders of both the A. F. L. and the CIO. They see in Bridges's proposal a Moscow line of conservatism; of abandoning the right of labor to raise wages, and improve working conditions in behalf of a better understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union. They believe that labor, without the right to strike will be impotent.

But both of these lines are theoretical. Far more revealing of the real question is the sit-in strike in the Brewster plant.

FUNDAMENTAL

Involved here is no question of wages or labor conditions or union rights. Involved is the far more fundamental question—the right to have continuing employment. It is begging the question to say that under wartime conditions the Brewster employes can easily be reabsorbed into other industries. It is also begging the main question to say that the Brewster rates of pay are higher than the men and women thrown out of work by the ending of the Navy contract might find elsewhere. These conditions are temporary. Senator Murray, after a hearing in which he examined company and union officials as well as spokesmen for the bureaus of the armed forces hit the nail on the head when he remarked, "The Brewster sit-in strike is a guinea pig of conversion policy—an advance warning to companies working on war contracts that new work be planned before contract terminations become more general."

The Brewster employes really have put their finger on the problem — the postwar maintenance of full employment. Mr. Thomas' fears can only be realized if there is no general plan for postwar economy, which will lead to full employment. Not the right to strike but the right to earn a living is what is really involved. No union leaders can maintain standards of labor, if there are millions of workers knocking at the doors of factories and offering themselves at any price. Neither strikes nor agreements with management would save this firm in this event.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

In our economic system, the so-called law of supply and demand for the commodity of labor determines who is the stronger—workers or employers. It is nonsensical to think that either no-strike pledges or the right to strike will play any determinant role in case of a huge labor surplus. On the other hand, if there is full employment, the unions can protect their rights, and an agreement can be reached between management and labor without referring to the ultimate weapon of the strike, for management will be interested in maintaining good wages in the interests of its own internal market, and labor will be forced to think twice before acting to throw out of balance the entire working economy.

The mistake made by both union leaders—Mr. Thomas and Mr. Bridges—is to put over-emphasis on formal pledges and formal rights, instead of stressing the material conditions in which alone labor and management can find peace with each other.

The Gallup Poll:

FDR Paces Dewey in Pennsylvania

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J.—Although President Roosevelt carried Pennsylvania in 1940, the Keystone state looms as one of the real battlegrounds in the coming presidential elections, should Roosevelt and Dewey, most popular candidates today, be the nominees.

Pennsylvania has the second largest number of electoral votes, totaling 35. New York state, with 47, has the largest number.

An intensive state-wide survey just completed in Pennsylvania by the Gallup Poll shows the President holding a slight edge in popular strength over Governor Dewey when field reporters asked a cross-section of civilian voters to name which of these two possible candidates they would choose if the election were being held today.

The result in Pennsylvania are as follows:

Roosevelt	52%
Dewey	48

By way of contrast, a similar survey in New York state published two weeks ago showed Dewey in the lead, with 52 per cent of the vote to Roosevelt's 48 per cent.

When Roosevelt's strength in the present poll is compared to the figures in the presidential elections in 1936 and 1940 in Pennsylvania, it became obvious that Republicans have ground for optimism at the strength shown by Dewey at this early date.

Percentage of Roosevelt vote in Pennsylvania:

1040	53
Today	52

Roosevelt shows relatively substantial support in the two most populous areas in Pennsylvania—Philadelphia and Allegheny county (Pittsburgh area), both industrial strongholds.

Roosevelt's decline in popularity throughout Pennsylvania, as show in the present survey, has come about mainly through defection of voters in the small cities rather than in the two great populous urban centers.

This is shown by comparing his vote in the present survey with the election figures for 1936 and 1940 in these areas and throughout the rest of the stafe:

Percentage for Roosevelt Vote

	Phila. and Alleg. County	Rest of Pa.
1936	64%	55%
1940	59	50
Today	60	47

"Briton deplores fact that United States histories picture George III of England as public enemy number one."—News item.

How frequently we ferret out some ancient thing to grouse about,
Some incident that's long since dead, some bitter words, best left unsaid,
When every day we see unrolled new troubles by the hundredfold,
And added to our hymn of hate are things to bring it up to date.
How very often friends are rude and we, with Spartan fortitude,
Must bear the stings and hope and pray they'll see the error of their way—
For if we make mistakes at all, they're always very, very small.
So we defend, with stubborn pride, the fellow who is on our side,
And he, who disagrees with us, is just an uninstructed cuss
Who ought to take his head along and ask the doctor what is wrong.

Well, gettin back to George III, from all that we have seen and heard,
The biggest fault he had was, he was kinda stingy with his tea,
And tea's a most important thing with British hoi-polloi or king.
But now and then a major spat emerges from a thing like that.
We wouldn't have a man at all left in a legislative hall
If we threw out the men whose acts eternally impose some tax—
We'd push them from the window sills or hang them on the highest hills.
We trust our friend will understand that we have troubles close at hand
And oftentimes we wonder which is worst, the devil or the witch . . .
The topic also gives us pain, and we'll not mention it again.

Veterans Who Help Pay for War Should Not Have To Help Unfit

Veteran's hospitals are doing a decent, humane and necessary job of caring for disabled veterans—not only those who were casualties, but others who developed ailments years after the war and needed operations or hospital care. In some hospitals there are men who will remain as long as they live, for they are incurable. And among these are some who were drafted only a few days before the war ended. They get years of hospital care, worth thousands of dollars, as reward for spending a few days in camp.

That seems to dispose of the ancient charge that republics are ungrateful. If these men served little, at least they did all that was needed, and nobody begrudges them the benefits they now receive payment.

But it is one thing to care for those who were fit when drafted and later were disabled, and quite another thing to draft the unfit who will inevitably become public charges in a few years if not in a few weeks.

We are now drafting unfit men—no civilian knows how many—who are given disability discharges as fast as they can be examined by competent men. It was one of this class, obviously not fit for service, who was asked by a fed-up examining officer: "How the hitch were you examined the first time—by telephone?"

An officer who is in charge of an Army school said recently that 90 per cent of the drafted illiterates are being "salvaged." These men, at the time of their induction, do not know one letter from another; myriad street signs mean nothing to them; they have never spent a day in school.

Using newly-developed methods, which make effective use of motion pictures, Army schools give them the equivalent of a fifth grade education in a few months. They are indeed salvaged, both for the Army and for citizenship. Helpless ignorance will no longer make them afraid and suspicious of all leaders except the flattering demagogue. Saving these nine for greater usefulness is a real service.

But what of the 10th young man—the 10 per cent of each group that cannot be salvaged?

These hopeless ones are not only illiterate but congenitally incapable of learning. Whether they are called mental cases or neurotics or what ever, they are abnormal or subnormal and must be discharged as unfit.

But that does not end their claim to public attention. Having been drafted as other men are, they have equal right to expect reward. The government accepted them as soldiers and thus assumed obligation to treat them as other soldiers are treated. They will be "veterans," entitled to share any pension or bonus or other benefit which in future years may be granted by their grateful or reluctant country.

Why are they accepted in the first place? Competent examination should require no more time before induction than after. Has not the taxpayer enough burden without adding another that isn't necessary?

Raid Wardens Told Bond Drive Hinges on Their Persistence

Atlanta's air raid wardens, Commandos of the Fifth War Loan bond-selling campaign, have been warned that failure must be impossible in the job they start next week—selling a bond in every house on every block in metropolitan Atlanta.

Charles J. Currie, district campaign chairman, last night told the proved veterans of Zone F-15 in the Ponce de Leon-Highland avenue section, who sold the most bonds during the last drive:

"The success or failure of this Fifth War Loan campaign depends on your persistence. It's up to you to see that no one neglects buying a bond because you failed to sell him."

Swift Tyler, precinct leader, assured Currie that his champions are ready to do a better job this time.

While the Zone F-15 meeting was being held at a dinner in the Briarcliff hotel, Civilian Defense Director George M. "Pup" Phillips, at the city auditorium, was organizing the 25 zone directors for the block-busting campaign The Atlanta Constitution is sponsoring.

Of the block-busting campaign, Precinct Leader Tyler said:

"It is the most effective means of making a success of a bond-selling drive that I know. We received the finest co-operation from The Constitution in our last drive. It is hard for us to express the thanks we feel for the help we shall receive from that newspaper in this drive."

Fred W. Robinson, director of Zone S, warned his salesmen against overconfidence.

The block-busting drive, staged by the wardens and supported to the hilt by The Constitution, will include:

Public recognition for the men who sell their blocks 100 per cent; the award of citations, recognition in special form for the man who sells the most bonds and recognition for the sector and precinct leaders who sell their areas 100 per cent first.

On every block sold 100 per cent Director Phillips will tack up posters announcing the achievement, to be lighted at night by flares.

At the meeting of the Precinct F-15 champions were War Finance Chairman Currie; Leader Tyler, O. E. Williams and Morris C. Croft, assistant leaders; and sector leaders, W. N. Hanner, Clifton Wood, V. S. Taylor, Ralph Wise, W. C. Homer, G. Ed McWhite, Frank Gibson and Edgar H. Clark Jr. County Police Lieutenant C. E. Mitchell was a guest.

Colonel Brown Speaks On Army's News Role

The Army is responsible for keeping the public informed on the war's progress, Lieutenant Colonel Robert S. Brown, assistant director of the Army Service Forces Bureau of Public Relations, Washington, told public relations officers of the Fourth Service Command at a conference here.

Colonel Brown spoke yesterday following addresses by Major General Frederick Uhl; Lee Fuhrman, Constitution city editor; W. F. Caldwell, southern manager of the Associated Press; Miss Frances Hailey, manager, Georgia Press Association; Davenport Steward, Atlanta manager, Acme Newspictures, and Willett Kempton, of the OWI.

No. 10 of a Series Recalling the Battle Cries of Famous American Heroes

"Our Country, Right or Wrong"

Scarcely a school reader in the country but carries these stirring words by Stephen Decatur. Yet how few of us can accurately give the entire quotation or how many of us remember that this famous toast was made at a banquet in Norfolk, Virginia, in April of 1816, just four years before our hero's death.

Certainly during his lifetime of service as a U. S. Naval Officer, this thought must have been the guiding star of all Decatur's activities, as evidenced by his world famous exploit in the harbor of Tripoli in 1804. Braving the fire of 144 guns he and a small crew made a "Commando-raid" into the harbor and destroyed the captive American boat—the Philadelphia—setting the example for the men of our Navy of 1944.

Jackson, contended that congress had not intended to bring the business under the Sherman act, but had meant to leave regulation to the states. Justice Reed, like Justice Roberts, took no part in this case.

Chief Justice Stone predicted the decision would result in great confusion and much harm. For example, he said, the regulatory statutes of at least five states will be invalidated as conflicting with the Sherman antitrust act.

MAJORITY OPINION

"Few states," he said, "go so far as to permit private insurance companies, without state supervision, to agree upon and fix uniform insurance rates. No states authorize combinations of insurance companies to coerce, intimidate and boycott competitors and consumers in the manner here alleged, and it cannot be that any companies have acquired a vested right to engage in such destructive business practices."

Black said the court's decisions in 1869 and in subsequent years that the business of insurance is not interstate commerce were aimed primarily at the right of the states to regulate the business. These decisions on the powers of the states, he said, do not affect the right of congress to regulate the business.

Chief Justice Stone said he was not necessarily adverse to overturning previous court decisions, but he foresaw a "flood of litigation as a result.

State's Rights Declared Menaced

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 5.—(AP)—Arkansas Insurance Commissioner J. H. Graves said today's U. S. supreme court ruling that insurance was business in interstate commerce "might upset the whole program of state supervision" and require new legislation "to protect state's rights."

Graves, who is chairman of the federal legislative committee of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, said he planned to contact other members of the committee immediately and probably would call a special meeting of the group within three days.

Wage-Hour Ruling Is Declared Invalid

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—The supreme court ruled invalid today an interpretation of the federal wage-hour administrator that companies handling farm products "within the area of production" are subject to the wage-hour act if they have more than seven employes.

The administrator told the supreme court that "annual wage payments of from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 turn on the scope to be given the term 'area of production.'"

Justice Frankfurter delivered the 5-4 decision, specifically involving Holly Hill Fruit Products Co., Inc., of Davenport, Fla. Justices Rutledge, Black, Murphy and Douglas dissented.

The law provides an exemption from the wage and hour provisions for "any individual employed within the area of production (as defined by the administrator) engaged in handling, packing, storing, ginning, compressing, pasteurizing, drying, preparing in their raw or natural state, or canning of agricultural or horticultural commodities for market, or in making cheese or butter or other dairy products."

The fifth circuit court held that the fruit processed at the Holly Hill plant came from the area of production involved in this case and that the company's 247 employes were not covered by the act.

Court Will Review Holding Group Ruling

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—The supreme court agreed today to review a decision holding constitutional the so-called "death sentence" provision of the public utility holding company act.

The provision, requiring that operations of a holding company be limited to a single "integrated public-utility system," was upheld by the federal court of appeals for the District of Columbia. Its decision sustained in part a Securities Commission order that Engineers Public Service Company dispose of properties worth $30,000,000.

Engineers' Public Service controls and operates gas and electric utility companies serving 12 states in widely scattered sections of the country. It asked the supreme court to review portions of the appeals court opinion which were adverse to the firm.

Gillette Ahead In Iowa Voting

By The Associated Press.

United States Senator Guy M. Gillette, a Democrat, campaigning for re-election, took an early lead over his opponent, Ernest K. Seeman, in the Iowa primary yesterday.

Returns from 179 of 2,463 precincts gave Gillette 2,300 votes, Seeman 568.

Seeman, a Waterloo factory worker, was making his fifth bid for a place in the national political spotlight.

The winner in the Democratic primary meets Governor B. B. Hickenlooper in the general election. Hickenlooper was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Robert D. Blue, a Republican, seeking to move into the Governor's chair, held the edge in early returns over two opponents, Henry W. Burma, speaker of the state house last session, and Milton W. Strickler, Des Moines attorney.

Blue, now lieutenant governor, in 181 out of 2,463 precincts, had 5,753 votes, Burma 3,852 and Strickler 581.

Nominations also were made for congress and other state offices.

Idaho Democrats named their 10-vote delegation to the party's national convention at a state meeting in Lewiston yesterday after hearing a keynote speech calling for the renomination of President Roosevelt. The keynoter, William S. Hawkins, accused the Republicans of using "shotgun politics."

Today in New York the Republicans are clinging to an admittedly slender hope of capturing one or both of two Democratic strongholds in the President's home state.

House seats for the fourth and 11th congressional districts, both in New York city, are at stake in special elections being held there, and Washington politicians are ready to accept a Democratic upset in either or both as indicating a marked change of voter sentiment that may bear on the presidential contest.

New Mexico and Tennessee also take part in today's political activities. Tennessee Democrats meet to name their 26-vote delegation to the national convention, and New Mexico nominates candidates for two congress-at-large seats, and for the governorship and a full state ticket.

Popcorn Latest War Casualty for Famished Civilians

KANSAS CITY, June 5.—(AP)—The popcorn business is going pouf!.

Charles T. Manley, president of a company which sells a large amount of the nation's popping corn and popcorn machines, broke the news sadly today.

The only way a civilian can get his teeth into the crunchy kernels, Manley indicated, will be to don khaki or navy whites and visit a post exchange.

"Only the armed forces will be eating popcorn this summer and fall," he declared. "There is no popcorn available for civilian use. There is not a legitimate processor in the United States that I know of who has a single bag of unpopped corn for sale other than for military use. We have not sold one grain of corn for civilians since December 26, 1943."

Putting Butane Gas in Autos Brings Installer $200 Fine

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—(AP)—Lawrence W. Zonker, who had pleaded guilty to installing butane gas equipment on automobiles, was fined $200 and Federal Judge Pierson M. Hall declared the sentence was light because no proceedings had been brought against Hollywood notables and other reported buyers of the equipment.

Zonker, a carburetor service operator, was fined $100 for installing a butane tank in violation of War Production Board regulations and $100 for failing to keep records of some 125 other such alleged installations.

James E. Harrington, local chief of the Department of Justice war frauds unit, told the court:

"I doubt that Gary Cooper or Louis B. Mayer had any personal knowledge of the negotiations to put the tanks on their cars, and I am certain they did not know that such purchases were illegal."

Government investigators had given the court a report naming Cooper and Mayer, film studio chief, and other film personages as among buyers of the equipment.

Vitality SHOES

VITALITY and POLL PARROT SHOES For Children

Sold Exclusively in Atlanta by . . .

Poll-Parrot SHOES For Boys and Girls

THOMPSON BOLAND-LEE

201 PEACHTREE ST. N. E.

"We have been fitting shoes honestly for 33 years"

Is there a shortage of children's shoes?

America's largest manufacturer of children's shoes answers this vital wartime question

Yes, there is very definitely a shortage! This is particularly true of dependable brands of medium and better quality children's shoes.

Parents today are demanding better quality. Rationing has brought about a keen appreciation of the difference between shoes that are good, and those that merely look good.

Why is there a shortage of children's shoes?

The nation's military demands and the needs of our allies have caused a decrease in the supply of leather available for civilian use and thus fewer leather shoes are being made for men and women, as well as for children. However, there is a sufficient quantity of good, serviceable shoe material available to meet essential civilian requirements.

While fewer pairs of children's shoes have been made since the war started, the demand has actually been greater and the shortage is felt more acutely for the following reasons:

1. Children wear out their shoes more quickly than do adults. And because children also outgrow their shoes, they seldom have extra pairs in reserve.
2. The rubber shortage has severely limited the number of tennis shoes available to boys and girls . . . this has added to the demand for leather shoes.
3. A sharp increase in the birth rate each year for the past three years has also put a heavier demand on leather required for additional babies' shoes.

Has the Government taken steps to make possible an increase in children's shoe production?

Yes . . . the Government has recently effected ways and means to increase the allocation and production of leather for children's shoes. This will make more leather available and enough shoes should be produced to cover necessary replacements for children. However, to provide substantial increases in the leather supply will take time.

What should I do to make my children's shoes last longer?

1. Always clean shoes thoroughly and treat them frequently with a good polish to preserve the uppers.
2. When shoes get wet, stuff the toes with cloth or paper to preserve their shape, and dry them away from excessive heat. After they're thoroughly dry, apply polish or other leather preservative.
3. At the earliest indication of needed repairs, take shoes (if still the correct size) to the repairman. Don't wait until it's too late and the shoes are beyond repair.
4. Alternate the wearing of new shoes and older ones . . . provided the older pair is still large enough.
5. See that rubbers or galoshes are worn (when available) in wet weather.

How can I be sure my children's feet are properly fitted?

Good shoes are made in the correct shapes for growing feet . . . built to stay that way . . . but your dealer does the actual fitting . . . so be sure you go to a reliable dealer.

The range of sizes and widths your dealer has in this emergency may not be as complete as he would like . . . so if he is unable to furnish the exact size in the style you prefer, we suggest that you select another pattern in the correct size that will serve your purpose. Never buy shoes too small . . . remember they must give longer service now . . . so allow ample room for feet to grow.

What are shoe manufacturers doing to produce more children's shoes?

In some instances production is being diverted from men's and women's shoes into children's shoes. Some manufacturers who in the past have made only adult shoes are now devoting part of their facilities to the production of shoes for children.

What is the International Shoe Company doing about this children's shoe problem?

As America's largest manufacturer of children's shoes, we are now producing a great many more pairs than we did a year ago. We expect to maintain this higher rate of production and, if possible, increase it.

But . . . in our endeavor to make more children's shoes we will not disregard quality . . . we are determined not to use present conditions as an excuse for lowering the moral standards of our product . . . standards that we have maintained for more than forty years.

We shall continue to make shoes that are worthy of your complete trust . . . that are constructed, inside and out, to give your children real protection during the vital years while their feet are developing.

You'll know these trustworthy shoes by the familiar brands and trade-marks reproduced below.

Canning Accidents Avoided By Studying Safety Rules

By Sally Saver.

Before you begin your season of canning it would be wise to sit down and calmly read a report recently published by the National Safety Council regarding home-canning accidents last year. A careful consideration of the facts concerning the cause of accidents, and a resolve to follow the constructive advice given in this report might conceivably be the means of seeing you safely through your summer canning program. For this reason I quote from the report:

"More than 80 per cent of home canning accidents in 1943 resulted from housewives using the oven canning method, the National Safety Council reports."

The council has completed a national survey of violent home-canning accidents, which were so numerous last year they attracted national attention. By the end of the canning season, case after case of serious injury and property damage had been reported by doctors, hospitals, insurance companies, public officials and other agencies close to the public.

About 15 per cent of the accidents occurred in the pressure canning method, usually a result of the failure of the canner to follow directions. The boiling water bath and open kettle methods were found to be safest.

Fresh beans were involved most frequently in canning accidents, with fresh fruits and tomatoes second and third.

If American housewives equal last year's canning records, they will put up more than 4,000,000,000 cans or jars of food, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. To save lives, injuries, property damage and the loss of food, the National Safety Council makes the following recommendations, approved by many of the nation's outstanding home economists:

1. Do not use the oven canning method. Dangerous even for experienced canners and under normal conditions, this method proved to be especially hazardous last year because of wartime changes in equipment and inexperience.

2. Use standard glass containers free from flaws or chipped edges.

3. Follow latest (1944) directions from an authoritative source for processing procedure. Also, learn 1944 instructions issued by the makers of your equipment. Have pressure canner gauges checked for accuracy by state or local authorities or by a reliable commercial company.

4. Sterilize glass lids and jars and keep hot until filled.

5. Use tongs (or similar gripping tool) to transfer hot jars and lids. When necessary to hold or grip a hot jar (as when tightening caps) cover it with a warm, dry cloth.

6. Pack jars according to directions—not too solidly—leaving head room of one-half inch or more for expansion of foods and liquids.

7. Place jars carefully on rack on bottom of canner, spacing them to permit circulation of steam or hot water around jars.

8. Keep jars from sudden chill. Steam should be completely dissipated before lifting canner cover. Use canner top as shield between body and canner when lifting top. Place hot jars on wood or linoleum surface out of drafts. Refrain from further handling except to tighten caps.

Kind of Exercises You Need Depends Largely on Your Job

By Ida Jean Kain.

Nobody asks you to be enthusiastic about calisthenics. Why should you be? They're work. But you will be wildly enthusiastic about the results.

These exercises doff the duffle at the waistline, firm your muscular girdle, and slim and smooth the hips. That should add up to the figure you are after. Moreover, this streamlining is so much velvet, for the same exercises are conditioners and give you extra drive and energy for living.

The kind of exercises you need depends largely on your job, on whether you sit all day and tend to round your shoulders and spread your hips, or whether you do housework and settle down in the middle, or are tense and tired from your war job. The same is true of the best time to exercise, which many of you write to ask about. If you are an office worker, you can take a few easy exercises when you get up in the morning. Take them right in your pajamas, before dressing. But they should be mostly the natural stretching and twisting kind that give you an easy start for the day. The ones taken lying down on the floor or bed are especially good. Frankly, I am against bouncing out of bed and bobbing up and down for exercise. There's no sense in knocking yourself out trying to be healthy! Don't underestimate this mild stretch-twist routine.

The ideal plan for you office workers would be to swim or to play at some sport, or walk regularly, after 5 o'clock. When you are mentally tired, physical activity is a rest. Three times a week would keep you in condition and get your figure back.

If your job is homemaking, you are an executive and can arrange your exercise schedule to suit yourself. You get more out of exercise in the middle of the morning, before you have done too much housework and are tired. Your next best time is between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, which is another high energy level. Fifteen minutes' calisthenics for the big muscles will give you more energy, not less.

THE WORRY CLINIC

By Dr George W Crane.

(Here's an interesting case on the psychology of mules. The latter are very smart animals, even excelling the horse in practical intelligence. This farmer's team of mules learned so much psychology in so short a time, however, that they went on a strike and wouldn't pull the corn planter.)

CASE C-262: Selma T., aged 19, is a college sophomore, taking her first course in psychology.

"I notice that the author of our textbook talks about 'conditioned reflexes' and says that 'conditioning' is one of the primary methods of learning," she said.

"Dr. Crane, what do psychologists mean by the term 'conditioning?'"

DIAGNOSIS

We do not mean what athletic coaches have in mind when they use the term to indicate that a player is hardened or toughened for intercollegiate football.

We mean instead, that a person or animal has become habituated to a certain situation or condition.

Suppose a large fish is in one end of an aquarium and a small fish in the other, with only a glass moreover, is the natural food of the large one.

As soon as the minnow makes a move, the big fish darts after him, but strikes the glass partition. It probably hurts his nose.

But the large fish soon forgets. A few minutes later he again dives after the minnow and again gets a sore nose.

Ultimately he becomes "condition" adversely as regards that minnow. It represents pain instead of pleasure. Even after the glass partition is then removed, the big fish may void the minnow.

CONDITION REFLEXES

You modern farmers now use this law of "conditioning" when you employ a single strand of wire instead of the former woven fence.

You fasten the wire with porcelain spools, so it is insulated from the ground. Then you fasten it to an electric battery.

Soon a horse or cow approaches the single wire and either reaches over the top or tries to crawl under it.

But as soon as its skin comes in contact with the charged wire, the animal gets an electric shock, for its feet on the ground make a completed electric circuit.

The animal rears back in pained surprise. It doesn't take more than one or two experiences of this sort until the animal is thus "conditioned" adversely to the wire. It stays away from it thereafter.

(Always write to Dr. Crane, in care of The Constitution, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—Friday afternoon I went out to St. Elizabeth's hospital to see the work which the arts and skills corps of the American Red Cross is carying on with the patients there. There are men and women from all the various services at St. Elizabeth's, as well as their regular patients. I was particularly interested in seeing the Red Cross building, because the first Red Cross building was erected during the last war, when the Navy sent its first men to St. Elizabeth's hospital. This hospital, as you may know, is the only federal hospital for mental cases and therefore I have always felt that it should be a model for all the state hospitals throughout the nation.

Over the years it has made great strides, but some of its buildings are old, and I was interested to see that the hobby shop, which is in the basement of one of the old buildings, is planning to decorate the outside as well as the inside. Many patients work in the grounds, which are now lovely. The work with clay and with paints everywhere was most interesting, and some of the weaving and embroidery, as well as the sewing and block printing which the women patients are doing, is outstanding. I am very glad that the Red Cross is carrying on this work and hope that the program will be developed in all mental hospitals.

At 10 o'clock on Saturday morning I went to the Navy Relief Society office which is now in the Navy building, and I was pleasantly surprised to see how much the work has expanded. When my husband was assistant secretary of the Navy, I served on the board and we barely had money enough to help a little in cases in which widows and children were left without sufficient funds to carry on. Now nearly all the workers in the office are volunteers.

Claude Rains Coming Back to the States From London

By Inga Arvad.

HOLLYWOOD.—"Winged Victory" has invaded Twentieth Century-Fox studios. Three hundred boys arrived the other day, and their uniforms made the studio look like a camp. . . . Of the 300, 40 are married, leaving 260 eligible bachelors added to Hollywood's population, though only temporarily. They won't make any addition to the town's night life, though, because the Army locks them up at 10 p. m. out in a camp at Santa Monica. The others will be allowed to live off the post with their spouses, provided, of course, that they can find a roof, which is mighty hard these days.

The soldiers who play in the picture will have absolutely no special privileges. This isn't a joy-ride, and their cinema careers will not be studded with extra week-end passes. In fact, I understand the Army is just a wee bit stricter with them than with the other millions serving in the armed forces of Uncle Sam.

The Army regards the picture as a report to the fathers and mothers of the boys in the Air Forces, now numbering more than 2,000,000 men. The profits go to Army Relief Fund, and Fox gets back only the actual cost of producing the picture and getting it to the theaters.

George Sanders (my special pet) has 150 scenes in "The Picture of Dorian Gray" and many of them portray eating set-ups. Result: He has gained six pounds since "Dorian Gray" was put in production.

William Wellman, who has been a director for some 20 years, said the other day, "At last I have come across the most temperamental actress in the world." "Who?" I asked, ready for a morsel of gossip. But he answered, "the blimp—everytime we have set up the cameras, and are ready for a shot, the blimp moves ever so slightly one way or another, and we have to re-set the cameras." He already looks pretty harassed, and "Airship Squadron Four" has just started.

Hedy Lamarr is trying to adopt a Sicilian war waif. The child's parents were killed in a bombing raid and a war correspondent sent a picture of the child to Hedy. It is not generally known but her husband, John Loder, is half Sicilian.

Claude Rains is en route to the States from London, where he recently completed "Anthony and Cleopatra" for Gabriel Pascal. He will get a warm welcome; never was he so wonderful as in the role of Mr. Skeffington, in the picture of that name. Rains really is a great actor—an "actor's actor" in the phrasing of professionals.

It was a great day for Bob Alda when he could take his son, Allie, back to rejoin his class at Black Fox Military school. Allie has made a complete recovery from the attack of infantile paralysis which laid him low some eight months ago.

If you ask Joel McCrea if he is a gentleman farmer, he will frown and answer, "farmer, sure, but not gentleman-farmer. Last year I sold 165,00 pounds of beef to the government, and that was only 65 per cent of the total produced on our ranch."

Mae Marsh, who became famous when Jimmy Cagney threw a grapefruit in her face in "Public Enemy," is making a comeback in the Fred MacMurray picture, "Murder, He Says."

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope always do walk-ons in pictures where one is in the regular cast and the other is "between pictures." So Bing is going over to the Goldwyn lot to annoy Bob in "The Princess and the Pirate," and Bob will pay him back generously in "Here Come the WAVES."

Esther Williams, the gorgeous swimmer-actress, who is fast proving star material, has been chosen by a Seabee detachment as "Queen of the Seabees." There is a beautiful plaque coming with the honor.

Mother: "Here, Son, is your book. You may look at it. We'll put Grandma's book on the table until she can show it to you."

Discipline and punishment are not synonymous. Discipline is teaching which corrects, while punishment is more often retribution than teaching.

Brady's Health Quiz

By Dr. William Brady.

EYE EXAMINATION

Which is the better way to have the eyes examined, with drops or without drops? Have had so much trouble with my eyes lately.

(R. E.)

Answer—If you are not past middle age better have drops. Last time I had my vision measured it was without drops. But the other day the doctor examining my eyes used drops. Accurate measurement of vision of young persons is obtained only when accommodation or unconscious strain is put at rest by drops. This is my opinion.

HOW DO YOU DO IT?

Until this mess is over I expect to spend half my time in Miami, half in Chicago. In Miami I don't have any hay fever, but in Chicago my catarrh is always much better. (Retired Manufacturer.)

Answer—Sorry, but there's a catch in your question: Whadaya mean "catarrh"? There is no such specific ailment, you see, and the term is used in a vague way to cover all sorts of chronic nose, throat, sinus, ear, bronchial troubles. Might bring light if you would send 25 cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet "Call It Cri."

Paternity

Can the paternity of a child five months old be determined by blood tests? (Mrs. M. J.)

Answer: No. In one instance out of four or five blood tests will show that a given child can not be the child of a given person; but no test will prove that a given child is the child of a given person, only that, if the child's blood and the blood of the person in question are of the same type or group, the person might be the child's parent—but so might a million others who have the same blood type as the child's.

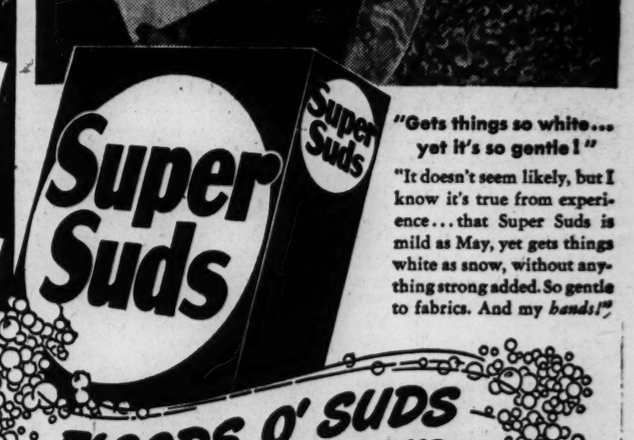
"It's no fun for kids if they can't get dirty...Thank goodness, dirt washes out so easy with MORE SUDS and LONGER LASTIN' SUDS!" says Mrs. Mary Dorritie

"FROM the day school is out, Margaret, Johnnie, and Mary are outdoors just about all the time. I'm holding Kathleen, the baby. It used to be hard to keep from scolding when I saw my 'wild Indians' gettin' so dirty... but, well, it's all different now that I've got SO MUCH MORE, LONGER-LASTIN' SUDS to wash with. New Super Suds makes such a HEAP OF HARD-WORKIN' SUDS that it's loads easier gettin' out even stubborn dirt that used to stick—like on collars, for instance. With a big wash like mine, the time I save usin' Super Suds really mounts up, believe me! And, my, how much easier it is on me... havin' so much less rubbin' and work to do!"



"Gets things so white... yet it's so gentle!"

"It doesn't seem likely, but I know it's true from experience... that Super Suds is mild as May, yet gets things white as snow, without anything strong added. So gentle to fabrics. And my hands!"

Fred Brooks Host at Dance

The Pompeian room of the Biltmore hotel was the scene of a gay sports dance at which Fred Brooks entertained last evening. The affair honored the Saturday Morning Class.

A jitterburg contest was the feature attraction, with prizes for the winners. The smoothest waltzers were also rewarded and danced an exhibition waltz for the mothers and fathers of the guests who were watching from the sidelines. There was a "fishing line" for the girls, which created lots of excitement and merriment.

In carrying out the "sports" theme "Dr. Quiz" was present to question the children on sports, and to crown the winner of the "64-dollar question."

THE next few weeks will be whirlwind ones for members of the sub-deb set, for several college belles will be accompanied home by attractive visitors. A number of parties already have been announced for these visitors, and additional ones are being planned each day. Among these is the luncheon at which Mary Sutherland will be hostess Friday at the Piedmont Driving Club for her guests, Suzi Marache, of Scarsdale, N. Y.; Norma Jean Perkins, of Williamsburg, Ky., and Georgianna Howard, of Lake Coronaut, Miss. Sharing honors will be Sally Prescott's visitors, Jean Tresbrey, of Taunton, Mass., and Barbara Mansur, of Dayton, Ohio.

Sally's visitors also will share honors with Ann Burckhardt's guests, Betty Holloway and Shirley Gunter, both of Montgomery, Ala., at the soft drink party at which Ann will be hostess Saturday afternoon. And Saturday evening Sally and her guests will divide the honors with Helen and her visitors at the buffet supper at which Helen's mother, Mrs. Ernest Beaudry, will be hostess at her home in the Biltmore apartments. Following the supper, Sally's mother, Mrs. Calvin Prescott, will entertain the group at the dance at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Sunday, Sally and her guests will go to Lithonia, where they will be among the belles attending the luncheon that will be one of the highlights of the house party given by the Sigma Nus. Sunday evening, Helen and her duo of visitors will be honored at the buffet supper to be given by Frances Battey (Mrs. Robert Jr.) Schwab. Frances, by the way, and one of her visitors, Marie Battey, are cousins.

Next Monday, June 12, Ann Equen will compliment Mary Sutherland's visitors at a luncheon, and that afternoon Marguerite Emmert will honor Helen's and Sally's visitors at a tea. Mary Pennington will give a soft drink party for Sally and her guests on Tuesday, June 13. And on Wednesday, June 14, Mrs. John Mangum will entertain at a luncheon at her country home on Redan road for Helen's visitors.

Sally Pat Connally has selected Thursday, June 15, as the date for the luncheon and swimming party she will give at the Piedmont Driving Club for Helen's, Sally's and Mary's guests.

Carol and Joan Smith, who arrive today from Rosemont College, near Philadelphia, Pa., also are planning a party for Helen's guests, but the date will not be set until after they arrive.

Sally and her two guests are anticipating a trip to Lakemont, where they will be chaperoned by the former's mother. But if they do get to go, it looks very much as though the trip will have to be "squeezed in"!

Aside from the visitors, there will be added excitement in the Beaudry household, for Ernest Jr. has telephoned from Texas that he is expecting to have a furlough, and that if nothing unforeseen intervenes, he will arrive on June 13!

SPEAKING of college belles returning, Jean Scruggs, pretty daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Anderson Scruggs, arrived yesterday from Rollins College, in Winter Park, Fla., where she is majoring in dramatic arts. Jean has taken a number of important roles in plays given the past year. The last one in which she appeared scored a big hit in Winter Park. Said a reviewer in Orlando, Fla., newspaper: "Eugenia Scruggs was simply stunning—especially in that red dress of the last scene, with her raven hair, her charming grace, and, well—just EVERYTHING!"

A GREAT deal of interesting sentiment is attached to the unusual wedding ring which will be used at the ceremony uniting Mayre Hall and Ensign Paul Crutchfield on Thursday. The ring originally belonged to the bride-elect's great-great-grandmother, Susan Priscilla Fowler. Fashioned of three narnow gold bands, it features two tiny clasped hands which, when opened, reveal two tiny hearts underneath.

The couple, whose engagement was announced Sunday, will be married at the First Baptist church in Decatur at 5:30 p. m., with Rev. A. B. Couch officiating. Sentiment also is attached to the choice of a date, for it is the wedding anniversary of Mayra's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Vernie Hall.

Mayre's wedding dress will be her something new, her veil will be borrowed and is being loaned by her cousin, Katherine Hall (Mrs. L. H.) Arnold. Her slippers also will be borrowed and belong to her matron of honor, Chloe Cochran (Mrs. E. E.) McDermott. The something old will be the orange blossoms on the veil, and which were a part of her mother's wedding attire. And a garter will constitute the something blue.

Besides Chloe, Mayre's attendants will include her sister, Betty Hall, as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be her cousin, Anne Adams, of Tignall, Ga.; her two roommates at Wesleyan College, Rebecca Godwin, of Dawson, Ga., and Lucile Carter, of Valdosta, Ga., and Beth Keller. Little Jennelle Crutchfield will be the flower girl.

Paul's father, Paul W. Crutchfield, will be the soloist, and Mayre's suitemate at Wesleyan, Lorena Durden, of Statesboro, will present the musical program.

CLOROX-CLEAN DISHCLOTHS are fresh-smelling . . . and more important . . . Sanitary!

A GRIMY dishcloth is not a pleasant sight. Worse yet it is likely to be germ-laden, a menace to family health. But a dishcloth, or dish mop, looks clean as new when it's Clorox-Clean. And Clorox not only bleaches and removes stains . . . it deodorizes and disinfects—providing hygienic cleanliness. The regular use of Clorox is a vitally important health precaution in washing white and colorfast cottons and linens . . . in cleansing kitchen and bathroom "danger zones". Simply follow directions on the label. There is only one Clorox . . . always ask for it by name.

Crackers Score Two in Ninth To Nip Vols, 6 to 5

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Red Corresponds Nicholas (Red) Jones, the Atlanta boy who's made good as an umpire in the American League, writes that he's enjoying his work.

"Am getting along ok up here. Am working with Cal Hubbard and Charley Berry, two mighty fine fellows. Hubbard is six-feet-four, 265 pounds, and Berry is over six feet and around 225. Around big 'Hub' I feel about as big as Pat Ankenman. Hope everything is going well in the dear ole Southern."

Jones wrote from Detroit and inclosed a clipping from The News. Harold Newhouser is having his first winning season with Detroit, and it's because he has perfected a new pitch, a slider. Newhouser gives Paul Richards, former Cracker manager, credit.

He spent a lot of time with me on it," Newhouser pointed out, "and he also gave me some advice on when to use it, and against whom to use it."

Richards also was credited with dispelling Newhouser's tantrums, which is considered no small accomplishment considering the number of games in which Newhouser sagged and literally beat himself when things weren't running smoothly.

"Richards helped me get a new slant," Newhouser said. "He convinced me that the breaks will even up if a fellow only keeps on giving his best."

Newhouser also said his control had greatly improved, and again he gave a nod in Richards' direction. "I have greater confidence now when I am about to deliver a 3-and-2 pitch."

Which recalls that Richards gave Dutch Leonard new confidence by calling indiscriminately for the knuckle ball. Richards made him throw it as a 3-and-2 pitch. And that went when there was a man on third.

The other day, in an interview on the Blue, Manager Steve O'Neill said Newhouser's improved pitching was one of the reasons for Detroit's rise. He also said the current brand of baseball is as good as any he has seen in 20 years.

He's Unpredictable Pete Gray even makes a liar out of the camera. The remarkable one-armed outfielder of Memphis, who's big league bound, Sunday showed 8,000 fans how he gets rid of a ball when he's in a hurry.

When there was need for haste, Gray would make the catch or scoop up a grounder, flip the ball into the air, tuck glove under nub in a lightning motion, catch the ball as it descended and slam the ball back to the infield.

When he posed for pictures recently, Gray was shown rolling the ball across his chest as he transferred glove under nub before regaining control of the ball with his active left hand.

He doubtless does this as a leisurely maneuver. But when he's in a hurry—flip goes the ball, tuck goes the glove under armpit, and whiz goes the ball to the right base in a matter of seconds.

Gray undoubtedly is the foremost juggler of his time.

But Doc Prothro was right in not wanting his ace outfielder to put on an exhibition.

"Gray is no freak," Doc pointed out. "He's a star player and we want to present him as such."

Attendance Doubled For the first 18 games of the season, the Crackers have almost doubled 1943 attendance. The figure for the corresponding number of games a year ago was 33,264.

This year, including Fans' night, the Crackers have attracted 65,938 customers. The league, as a whole, is up some 25 per cent. The Crackers have shown an increase of almost 50 per cent. A most encouraging sign is that Memphis, too, has drawn almost 50 per cent more fans.

If attendance picks up at Nashville, New Orleans and Chattanooga, the Southern League might attract close to 1,000,000 followers in the third war year.

There is a good chance, locally, for attendance to better 200,000.

The Cracker management is making every effort to fashion a pennant winning team and the closeness of the race has added to the interest.

Atlanta Ties Birmingham For 4th Place

By JACK TROY.
Constitution Sports Editor.

As King, a Redskin relief pitcher, bit the dust, the Crackers advanced to within a game of first place last night by downing the Nashville Vols, 6 to 5, while New Orleans was knocking off the Memphis Chicks.

There were 1,887 people on hand to see the Crackers rally colorfully in the ninth to overtake the Vols and scalp King, who had moved in from centerfield to take over the pitching in the eighth. He replaced Balser, who had retired for a pinchhitter.

There was still none out on the board as the Crackers scored the winning run on a sharp single by Luther Gunnells. A three-base overthrow by former Cracker pilot Al Leitz, aided the winning rally.

Incidentally, the triumph in the opening game of Nashville series sent the Crackers into a fourth-place tie with the Birmingham Barons. The Knoxville Smokies now lead the Southern League.

CARPENTER WINNER

Lewis Carpenter relieved Dick Mauney after the eighth—Mauney having retired for a pinch-hitter—and Carpenter came out of it as the winning pitcher.

Larry Gilbert's nine outhit the Crackers, 13 to 11, but they were shy in the runmaking division. Regio and Elko collected three hits apiece.

Second game of the series will be played tonight—ladies' night—at 8:15. Joe Roxborough is due to pitch for the home nine. Marshall Mauldin had to leave the lineup because of his bad leg during last night's game. He may not be available for a few days.

Regio took advantage of Mauldin's slowness, caused by a leg injury, and ran a single into a double in the first inning. Carlson hit a single to short center, sending Regio to third. He scored on an infield out.

The Crackers knotted the count in their half. After two were out, Deal singled. Lipscomb also singled and the ball got away from McBee. Deal scored and Lipscomb went to third.

Viers hit a mighty blow as the Cuylermen went two runs ahead in the fourth. Gunnells walked, with one out, and Reid struck out. Viers tripled to left. Ivy singled to left.

The Vols drew even in the fifth. There was one out as Regio doubled and Carlson made it two by striking out. King singled, scoring Regio, and Hicks doubled, scoring King.

SCORE IN SIXTH

The Crackers made the very least of their opportunity in the sixth. Gunnels singled, Reid walked and Viers got an infield hit, with none out. Carlson fumbled Ivy's grounder and Gunnels scored. Mauney struck out for the first out. Garmendia, who had relieved Mauldin, struck out for the second time and Goodman was thrown out by the pitcher.

The Vols pounced on Mauney and scored two runs to take the lead in the eighth. McBee and Elko singled. Garner sacrificed. Leitz was walked intentionally. Lucas batted for Balser and flied to center. McBee scored after the catch. Regio singled and Elko scored.

The Crackers won the game in the ninth. Howell batted for Garmendia and walked. Fajo ran for Howell. Goodman beat out a bunt and Fajo scored and Goodman went to third as Leitz threw the ball away. King walked Deal and Lipscomb intentionally. Gunnells came through in the clutch, driving a single to left and scoring Goodman with the winning run.

Prokop, Pritchard Face Rugged Line Saturday

By F. M. WILLIAMS.

A strong, experienced line against two of the best backs in the country will be the bill of fare Saturday when picked teams from the Georgia Tech football squad tangle in a regulation game that marks the end of 1944 spring drills at The Flats.

Bobby Dodd, who tutors the backs for Coach W. A. Alexander, will handle the Blue team, which has the line. Dwight Keith, "B" team mentor, will be in charge of the Golds, whose main hope for victory will be carried by Eddie Prokop and Bosch Pritchard, both All-Americans.

Coach Dodd's team will have at least eight 1943 lettermen in the starting lineup, and Coach Keith's club will have only two, Bob Cummings at center and Prokop. Pritchard is a chief petty officer in the Navy and therefore ineligible for varsity competition, but he made All-America at V. M. I. and later was a professional star for the Philadelphia Eagles. He has been scrimmaging with the Jackets ever since he landed at the Tech naval unit last year and is in tip-top condition.

Neither Prokop nor Cummings, who was a regular last fall after Captain "Mutt" Manning graduated, will be at Tech for the 1944 season. They graduate July 1 and will be moved on to another naval station for more training.

The game Saturday will be sponsored by the Student Council and admission will be 50 cents per person. All proceeds will go to the council. Kickoff will be 2:30 p. m.

Following is the way the squad has been divided, with the first man listed at each position a probable starter Saturday:

Kapalani Tries Zaharias Again

The Duke Kapalani-Babe Zaharias main-go wrestling match scheduled for the City Auditorium Friday night should be one of the most bitterly-contested matches staged here in many weeks.

Their last meeting terminated in a state of confusion with both men claiming to be the master of the other. In order to settle this old score and at the same time select a probable opponent for World's Champion "Wild Bill" Longson in his coming visit to the auditorium, Promoter Paul Jones has decided that these two huskies will have to get in there and come up with a clear-cut decision this time or else be eliminated from the Longson card altogether.

Kapalani is the more clever of the two, but Zaharias' rough-and-tumble tactics proved to be quite a problem for the Hawaiian in their last meeting.

The main supporting matches for the Zaharias-Kapalani feature will be a pair of one-fall bouts pitting Jack Wentworth, of Toronto, Ontario, against Dick Lever, of Nashville, and "Irish Jack" Kelley against Al Massey, of Miami.

Another 30-minute limit match will be announced later.

Grid Officials Approve Setup With S. E. C.

Recommendations for appointment of officials made by Southeastern Conference football coaches at a meeting in Louisville, Ky., last March, has been approved by the executive committee of the Southern Football Officials' Association.

The committee held a meeting in Atlanta Sunday.

Only request of officials to the presidents of SEC schools, who will hear the coaches' recommendations officially on June 16 in Birmingham, is that a committee be appointed to draw up suitable working details essential to the success of the plan.

The following statement was issued by the executive committee Monday:

"At a meeting of the executive committee of the Southern Football Officials Association held in Atlanta Sunday, June 4, it approved the recommendations of the Southeastern Conference football coaches for the appointment of officials, which comes before the Southeastern Conference presidents at their meeting to be held in Birmingham, Ala., on June 16.

"The association asks only that a committee be appointed by the presidents of the Southeastern Conference and the Southern Football Officials Association to draw up suitable working details essential to the success of the plan."

The meeting was attended by President Battle Bagley, of Fayetteville, Tenn.; Vice President Gus Tebell, of University, Va.; Secretary A. R. Hutchens, Lake Wales, Fla.; Executive Committeemen Paul Menton, Baltimore; Rumsey Taylor, Princeton, Ky., and George Gardner, Atlanta.

At the Louisville meeting, coaches unanimously voted to enter into a new contract with the Southern Officials Association and have officials assigned through the central booking office, headed by Secretary Hutchens.

A contract between the SEC and the officials expired last December and there was a tremendous effort on the part of some college officials not to sign a new one, but instead have officials assigned by Commissioner Mike Conner. Such a plan was opposed by coaches because all experienced officials are members of the Southern Association and would not work through the commissioner.

Victory depends on these convoys

MEN WITH SEA EXPERIENCE ARE URGENTLY NEEDED TO KEEP THEM MOVING

Guarded by the protective guns of Navy escort ships, American merchant vessels in convoy keep our fighting men in essential supplies.

IF YOU ... are an experienced seaman, mate, engineer or radio operator, YOU should be at sea NOW!

MORE THAN ... 3,000 AMERICAN ships now sail on every ocean and sea. They touch every continent. They carry supplies to every combat theater where Allied troops are fighting for victory. Without supplies, these troops cannot win. More ships are on the way. Thousands of men and women are working day and night to build them. Thousands of experienced seamen, mates, engineers and radio operators will be needed to sail them before victory is won.

Steering a new Victory Ship during wartime is a helmsman's job. Hundreds of men like this helmsman are needed now!

If you hold or have held licenses as mate, engineer, radio operator, or certificate as able-bodied seaman you will be more usefully employed at sea

Jobs A-Plenty For Men Affected At Brewster Plant

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—The Navy contended today that jobs are available in the New York area for the workers in the Brewster Aircraft Corporation plant at Long Island City, who are affected by the order cancelling contracts with Brewster for fighter planes.

"Examination of the labor situation in the New York area by the Navy Department," a statement said, "reveals that there are at least two jobs available in that area for every semi-skilled and common laborer presently employed at the Long Island, New York, plant of the Brewster Corporation. There are at least five jobs in New York for each skilled laborer. All jobs available are at rates of pay and working conditions comparable with those at Brewster.

"There are 50 plants in the area who have a No. 1 labor priority and, together they could absorb twice as many employes as are now employed at the Brewster plant."

GSCW Hears Bishop Walker

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 5. It is impossible to divide life into the secular and the sacred, Bishop John Moore Walker, D. D., bishop of the diocese of Atlanta, told the graduates of the Georgia State College for Women today at the baccalaureate services in Russell auditorium.

Meanwhile Ralph McGill, editor of The Constitution, in an address at the graduation exercises, urged the students to discuss, study and evaluate modern life.

"Everything has to do with religion, for the Christian religion is the way of life," the bishop said. "It is dangerous to attempt to set the affairs of existence into little watertight compartments."

He deplored the existence in the modern world of people who, though possessing well-trained minds, were cases of arrested development in the realm of conscience.

"We feel pity for people who are grown physically, and have the minds of six-year-olds," he said. "But we are in real danger from those who are physically and mentally developed, and yet who are dwarfed in moral and spiritual sensibilities."

He spoke to them yesterday of the need to "remember that God never changes, only man's conception of God changes."

The greatest duty of any human being, he informed them, is to know God well enough to be able to make Him real to the others who live in the suffering world of today.

Presented by the Rev. F. H. Harding, rector of St. Stephens' Episcopal church, Bishop Walker spoke to a large audience of graduates and their parents and friends.

President Guy H. Wells presided. Max Noah, head of the department of music, directed the college choir in Bizet's Agnus Dei, with Betty Walker as soloist, Elizabeth Mallard as pianist, Lloyd Outland as violinist, and Annette Hodges as organist.

Dr. Paul Boesen was in charge of the academic procession, led by the president, with his administrative staff and faculty.

Featured speaker at the graduation exercises, McGill urged all students to learn how to evaluate events as well as how to make a living.

In his address, he compared the American cult of freedom with the Nazi cult of complete social control over minds of people, and urged the graduates to be vigilant in protecting freedom.

"Encourage your own students and your own children to study, discuss, and evaluate modern life."

Eulogizing the late Jack Spalding, he quoted his famous quotation in which Spalding said "freedom is not something that can be locked in a safety vault, but a possession that can be kept only when it is securely fixed in the minds of the people."

Summer school at the Georgia State College for Women will open Wednesday, June 7, Dean Roy Taylor, director, said today. Registration will be held on that day at the Ina Dillard Russell library, and classes will begin on Thursday. Commencement exercises for the first term will be held on Saturday, July 15, and the second summer term will begin Monday, July 17.

Dr. Mildred English will be in charge of the Peabody laboratory school, where summer school teachers may observe trained teachers using modern methods of teaching. A special course is being arranged to enable those who are interested in nursery school training to assist at the G. S. C. W. nursery school. This work will be directed by Mrs. Ethel Fairfield.

Miss Mary Brooks, who has been doing graduate study this year in Chicago, will be in charge of the summer workship, Dean Taylor said.

ONE of America's largest companies in its field offers a fine opportunity immediately and permanently for a man of unusual qualifications for an unusual job in this area. The starting salary is $5,200 per year and eligibility to participate in a bonus which the company has always paid in the past. The successful applicant will be a man in good health between 25 and 45 years of age who has draft deferment and is not at present employed in essential industry. TODAY'S TALL TALE—For a bomber to get lost while on a mission over enemy territory is not unusual, but it took Sergeant George H. Baldwin, of Waverly Hall, Ga., to find that a man can get lost in his own plane.

Sergeant Baldwin, assistant radioman on the Liberator "Smokey Stover," was caught in the forward bomb-way of his plane for 20 minutes on a recent raid over Truk, while his pilot was frantically asking his crew members what had happened to the missing man.

It seems that his heavy "flak suit" became entangled with the catwalk struts of the bomb-bay!

Duggan Named To Credit Post

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Ivy William Duggan, of Georgia, director of the southern division of the Agriculture Adjustment Agency, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

If confirmed by the senate he will succeed A. G. Black, whose resignation was announced March 3.

Mr. Roosevelt also sent to senate the nomination of Charles Franklin Brannen, of Colorado, to become assistant secretary of agriculture, a post left vacant when Grover B. Hill became undersecretary of agriculture.

Duggan is a native of Sparta, Ga., and is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mell L. Duggan, his father serving Georgia a long number of years as a supervisor in the state department of education and later as state superintendent of schools. His father died several years ago and his mother about six months ago. The family home in Atlanta is at 850 Penn avenue, N. E., and they also own a home at Clayton.

Ivy Duggan graduated from Clemson College, South Carolina, in 1919, taught vocational agriculture at Ashburn, later serving as county farm agent of Turner county, later going to Clemson College to teach agriculture.

Methodists Set District Parley

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Atlanta East and Atlanta West district conferences in a joint session at Wesley Memorial church today will give special consideration to the state of the church and to evangelism in the immediate Atlanta territory. Other discussions will pertain to passing characters of all local preachers and granting licenses to preach to men who pass examinations.

Dr. Joseph A. Smith, pastor of the Glenn Memorial Methodist church, is chairman of the committee to report on the general state of the church, and will read the report.

The Rev. John Tate, of College Park, will lead in the study of the evangelism report to be submitted by that committee.

Reports on laymen's work will be submitted by J. W. Hardwick for the East district, and by Smith L. Johnston for the West district, in addition to granting licenses to preach and passing characters of local preachers, the conference also will recommend for admission on trial a class of young ministers who desire to enter the itineracy.

Advance information as to individual reports to be made by pastors shows that financial obligations are practically 100 per cent up to date for the first six months of the conference year and that revival meetings so far held have added several hundred new members to the church rolls on profession of faith.
